INTRODUCTION

THE primary object of the publishers of the Canadian Trade Index is to provide buyers and sellers at home and abroad with an authoritative directory of the products manufactured in Canada with the names of the firms making them. It includes a complete list of all Canadian manufacturers having more than a local distribution for their products.

In war the information in this book is of more value than ever: in Canada we must find to an increasing extent Canadian sources for our growing requirements, and in overseas countries many former sources of supply have been cut off or greatly impaired. As a matter of policy, arsenals or government owned plants are not listed.

When first published in 1900, the Canadian Trade Index included only members of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, Incorporated. Since that time, as a result of constructive suggestions from several Ministers of the Crown and members of the Association, the book has been enlarged to meet conditions in both domestic and overseas markets.

Many years ago it was made a national publication, including all manufacturers in Canada. To assist buyers in other countries, overseas representatives of Canadian manufacturers were listed and French and Spanish Sections added. As a result of an arrangement with the Department of Trade and Commerce at Ottawa, the Index was enlarged to include a Special Export Section and a list of producers, shippers and exporters of agricultural produce and allied lines.

In this edition the Export Section has a foreword regarding the vital importance of export trade by The Honourable James A. MacKinnon, Minister of Trade and Commerce, Ottawa.

Owing to the detailed classification and the numerous advertisements, prospective purchasers are generally in a position to get in direct contact with manufacturers of the goods desired, but where information regarding specialized lines is required the gratuitous service of the Commercial Intelligence Department of the Association is offered. It is suggested that importers abroad should first communicate with Canadian Government Trade Commissioners in their respective territories. Their names are listed on pages 157 and 158 of the Export Section. Representatives of overseas firms visiting Canada are invited to call at the Head Office of the Association where they will be given every possible assistance.

The Index is kept up to date by an annual revision, and the past year has been spent in checking and revising names, addresses and classifications. Each manufacturer is sent a revising form on which any changes in firm names or products are reported. Additional information is received from Government departments, mercantile reports, and our ten offices across Canada. Classifications are generally established by consultation with manufacturers and experts in various industries.

The publishers wish to thank all organizations, government departments, and the manufacturers who have so kindly aided by furnishing the information on which the book is based.

War and war conditions bring many new problems arising out of adapting the industrial system of the country to new production, locating new sources of raw materials and manufactured goods, finding new markets, complying with new regulations in existing markets, exchange control and import restrictions, employer and employee relations, shipping and insurance, legal and taxation difficulties, scientific and industrial research.

Transportation Department— Deals with and watches developments in all matters affecting Transportation by Air, Highway, Inland Water, Ocean, Rail, Telegraph or Telephone. Legal Department— Maintains a watching brief on all Canadian legislation, receives copies of all Bills introduced in Federal and Provincial legislatures, studies the measures proposed, and assists the Legislation Committee in deciding and carrying out the policies of the Association.

Commercial Intelligence Department— Information re articles made in Canada; names of manufacturers of articles; information re agencies and export connections; sources of supplies of raw materials; Government regulations re manufacturers; translations of foreign correspondence; classified lists of manufacturers; commercial statistics and trade information; commercial reports on overseas firms.

The Trade Sections Department supplies a secretarial and organizing service to any group of manufacturers who may desire to organize along lines of production and for the purpose of dealing with common problems incidental to any trade.

Industrial Relations Department— Studies various questions arising out of relations between employers and employees. Among the more important of these are Workmen's Compensation, Old Age Pensions, Hours of Work, Unemployment Insurance, Conciliation and Arbitration of Industrial Disputes, Wages, and Factory Legislation.

Publishing Department— The following publications are supplied to all members of the Association:

(a) "Industrial Canada" the official organ of the Association, which contains information compiled from the various Departments, and also commercial news of a general character.

Gearing Industry To Needs of War

Many small firms, travelling along with a steady output and gradual normal growth, have suddenly been confronted with urgent orders beyond their usual capacity. Expansion of manufacturing facilities becomes instantly imperative. Materials in greater than normal variety and volume have to be procured immediately. Credit is required far in excess of usual business requirements.

De Laval "Uni-Matic" Oil Purifiers are compact units with direct motor drive, self-lubricating and ball bearing equipped—each unit carefully rated as to efficiency to give Guaranteed Performance.

DURING the past quarter century 500 or more De Laval Oil Purifiers have gone to sea on naval vessels of all types, giving increased protection to their bearings and gears; adding to dependability as well as economy of operation.

De Laval Oil Purifiers maintain lubricating oil in a state of purity comparable only with that of new, unused oil . . . continuously removing harmful, dangerous impurities such as water, sludge, metallic particles, pipe scale and similar dirt.

That's also why over 50% of the world's deep sea tonnage as well as a large number of coastwise vessels and inland water craft are equipped with De Laval Oil Purifiers—the proved and practical means for safeguarding valuable equipment and operating profits as well.

Speed Reducers

Used wherever High Speed Power is applied to Low Speed Use

Worm gear and helical gear units, in single and multiple reduction, are made in a wide range of sizes. Send for catalogue on either of these types, listing standard sizes, with power capacities and detail specifications. These are high grade, heavy duty gear drives, designed and rated for 24-hour continuous service. Ratios are available up to six thousand to one in simple, efficient, self-contained units.

Integral motorized speed reducers and increasers, built as one self-contained unit, are made in a full range of sizes, in both worm gear and helical gear forms, in single and multiple reduction, to give almost any desired final speed. This construction offers many advantages in freedom of arrangement.

We have extended our line of Double Reduction Worm units to quite large sizes. These have ratios ranging from about 60 up to 6000 to one. A catalogue covers this line in detail.

The Planetary type of speed reducer with shafts in line is now made for coupled connection, as shown, as well as in the original motorized form. A catalogue has been issued on each of these lines.

*The Compensating
Joint*

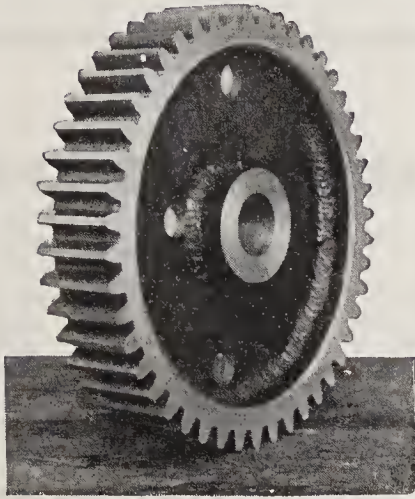

Silent Chain Drives

The Hamilton-Ramsey silent chain (made in Canada) will operate at higher speeds and run smoother and with less wear than any competing chain because of the compensating rolling cam action in the patented Ramsey joint. 24-hour delivery, in $\frac{3}{8}$ " to $1\frac{1}{2}$ "-pitch.

There's an advantage in the accumulated experience of thirty years of single-track work in heating research, invention and engineering incorporated in Dunham Equipment. There's an advantage in the completeness of the Dunham Line which permits simplified handling of orders, deliveries and installation — and undivided manufacturer's responsibility for heating system performance. There's an advantage, too, in the service of competent Dunham Engineers whose aim is not to sell you a bill of goods, but to see that you receive the single commodity — GOOD HEATING.

save you money

Here we show only a few of the parts we are making for various Canadian manufacturers. These include automobile ornaments and hardware, plumbing fixtures, padlocks, door stops, hose nozzles, telephone stands, clock cases, candlesticks, and gears and other parts for washing machines. If your product has metal parts now made by the slower and more expensive sand-casting method, it will pay you well to look into the savings and better satisfaction of die casting.

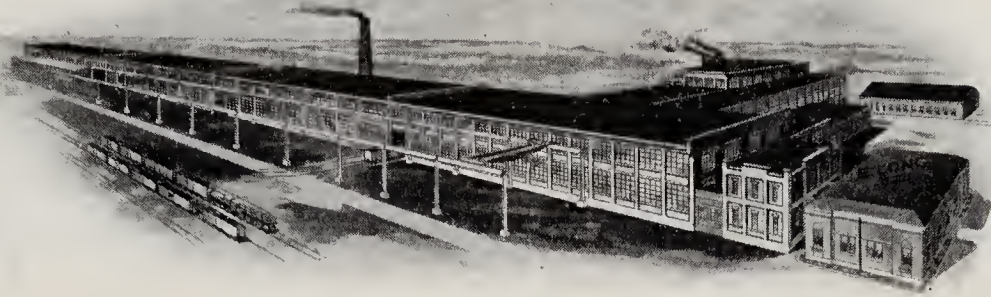

STRENGTH — Our zinc base alloy is from virgin metals of a tested, proven formula. A thermostat holds the casting temperature to an absolute pre-determined degree. Our machines, which are of the latest improved type, always produce a dense, homogeneous casting.

PRECISION — Our dies will assure all dimensions within extremely close limits. The variety of castings now being made in our plant is evidence of our ability to turn out successfully whatever you may require.

FINISH — Requires very little machining or polishing in your factory.

PRODUCT DEVELOPMENT

Standards and specials — we make them both. Standard grades of bond, book, writing, and practically every other class of high grade paper. Besides this, however, our skilled staff of experts are always on hand, testing and experimenting to improve those standard grades, or to work out some specialty paper for a definite demand. It is this interest shown in product development that assures the users of Howard Smith paper that the products they buy are produced not only with the hands but with the brains of paper craftsmen.

Foreword

to

SPECIAL EXPORT SECTION

By THE HONOURABLE JAMES A. MACKINNON

Minister of Trade and Commerce, Ottawa.

TRADE between nations is now, everywhere in the world, controlled or conditioned by the impact of war. Problems confronting exporters, always intricate, have become even more difficult and more acute. Canadians can take a large measure of satisfaction in the steady and progressive advance in our export trade. It has been impressive. Even justifiable satisfaction should not, however, beget complacency or becloud the reality of the problems. These are of especial importance to this Dominion for there are few countries in the world whose per capita trade is so great as Canada's, or where external trade constitutes so large a part of the national income. Of particular importance at this time is the imperative necessity of maintaining and supporting the exchange value of our currency.

Canada's import requirements, always substantial, have been further magnified by the demands of our industrial war effort. Despite the Dominion's tremendous resources in some export fields, outside sources of numerous materials for civil and military needs are indispensable. The Government has taken steps to conserve exchange by restrictive measures where feasible, but now, more than ever before, it is of the utmost urgency that Canada's export trade should be substantial and permanent to provide the wherewithal to pay for vital imports.

While the war has created new problems it has also, in a measure, given rise to compensatory opportunities. While the markets of Continental Europe are closed, or at least restricted, the effective closing of this important area from the markets of the world creates new outlets for Canadian products, worthy of exploration and cultivation by Canadian exporters. It is a duty as well as an opportunity for us to make every effort to preserve the markets already enjoyed where possible but no less to gain a firm footing in such new markets as now present themselves and which were formerly served by the countries with which we now find ourselves at war.

The Department of Trade and Commerce is maintaining its full services. During the year just past Major Jas. G. Parmelce has had to relinquish his office as Deputy Minister by reason of ill-health. His place has been filled by the appointment of Mr. L. D. Wilgress, whose acquaintance with trade problems is well and favourably known, and the unanimous approval which has greeted his appointment is gratifying. The Department has also set up a Division of Commercial Relations, looking toward the continuous needs of negotiation on matters of trade. Further, the Department is giving every consideration to the investigation of markets and the cultivation of sound relations with those friendly countries where there are possibilities for increasing Canada's share of their requirements.

Export trade has been the most potent vitalizing force in the economic life of this Dominion throughout its history. It is important now, as never before, and calls for indomitable resolve and courageous resourcefulness from the Government and exporters alike.

Department of Trade and Commerce

The Act of Parliament which in 1887, created the Department of Trade and Commerce and which was brought into effect by an Order-in-Council, dated December 5th, 1892, merely provided that there should be a Department of the Government of Canada to be called the Department of Trade and Commerce. The duties and powers of the Minister were defined to be the execution of laws enacted by the Parliament of Canada relating to such matters connected with trade and commerce generally, as had not been assigned to any other Department of the Government. In the succeeding years a wide range of services have been performed and at present the Acts administered by the Department include The Canada Grain Act; Electricity Inspection Act; Gas Inspection Act; Electricity and Fluid Exportation Act; Electric Units Act; Precious Metals Marking Act; Statistics Act; Water Meters Act; Inspection of Weights and Measures Inspection Act; Inland Water Freight Rates Act; An Act to place Canadian Coal used in the manufacture of iron or steel on a basis of equality with imported coal; Grain Futures Act; and the National Film Act.

The various functions of the Department are carried out by the following organizations:—

EXPORT TRADE:

- The Commercial Intelligence Service in Canada and abroad.
- The Foreign Tariffs Division.
- The Trade Routes and Steamship Subsidies Division.
- Commercial Relations Division.

PUBLICITY:

- Publicity and Advertising Division.
- Canadian Government Motion Picture Bureau.
- Exhibitions and Publicity Services in United Kingdom.

STATISTICS:

- Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

CANADA GRAIN ACT.

INSPECTIONAL SERVICES:

- The Electricity and Gas Inspection Services.
- The Weights and Measures Inspection Service.
- The Precious Metals Marking Act.

BOUNTY PAYMENT SERVICES:

- An Act to place Canadian Coal used in the manufacture of iron or steel on a basis of equality with imported coal.

The Commercial Intelligence Service

The Commercial Intelligence Service is the chief agency of the government assisting export trade. It maintains abroad a staff of 30 Trade Commissioners and 15 Assistant Trade Commissioners, whose function it is to assist Canadian producers and manufacturers in developing export markets. This Service, which operates under the Department of Trade and Commerce, is at the free disposal of Canadian exporters.

When consulted by the Canadian exporter as to market outlets for his product, the Commercial Intelligence Service refers to several sources of information. Previous correspondence and reports from Trade Commissioners are examined. Canadian Export Statistics reveal the quantities, and to what countries the product in question is being shipped; and the import statistics of those countries show the quantities and sources of import. Consequently, the exporter can usually be given a good preliminary idea of the opportunities and difficulties, or competition likely to be met in any country. If there are any possibilities for his product, he is advised to communicate direct with the Trade Commissioner concerned, and to send him catalogues, samples, c.i.f. prices, and other data. The exporter is guided and assisted by the Trade Commissioner in the appointment of an agent, and his interests are carefully watched until he is well established in the market.

Foreign importers, in many cases, approach the Trade Commissioner seeking possible sources of supply in Canada. Their enquiries are forwarded to the Department for publication in the Commercial Intelligence Journal and for circulation to Canadian firms likely to be interested.

The Trade Commissioner is often responsible for discovering and exploring new channels of trade. From his observations he may suspect that his territory may be developed into a market for some Canadian product. Once convinced that the commodity can compete with that offered by other countries, he will endeavour to interest importers in a trial shipment.

The Department at Ottawa publishes the Commercial Intelligence Journal, the subscription rate of which is the nominal one of $1.00 per year. This weekly publication contains the reports of Trade Commissioners pertaining to the market conditions of their territory in general, and the situation with regard to definite commodities in particular. It also contains other information regarding international trade, such as foreign exchange quotations, proposed sailings, tariff changes, trade inquiries, etc.

Effect of War on Export Trade

Important changes will take place during the war in the direction, character and volume of Canada's export trade. These changes will affect some manufacturers adversely, others favourably, but the nett effect will be an increase, probably of considerable magnitude, in total export business. The tendency towards increased trade is becoming more marked as other countries find it more and more difficult to secure supplies from customary sources. On the other hand, import restrictions imposed in certain British countries have had an adverse effect upon the trade of many Canadian manufacturers. This is especially so in the case of manufacturers of luxury and semi-luxury goods upon which the restrictions bear most heavily.

The new conditions brought about by the war have created new problems and difficulties for exporters. These are primarily due to the imposition by governments of controls of various kinds with the object of restricting imports of non-essential commodities and of conserving foreign exchange for the purchase of goods essential for the prosecution of the war.

While the war has created new difficulties and problems for exporters, it has also opened up new, or widened old avenues for Canadian export trade. At the outbreak of the war the Commercial Intelligence Service commenced a survey of opportunities for increasing Canada's exports to countries that have been cut off by war conditions from their customary sources of supply in Europe. Canadian Trade Commissioners have made a study of the possibilities of displacing German goods in markets such as those in Latin America. Reports on this subject, relating to particular countries, have been published in the Commercial Intelligence Journal. As a result of this survey by the Trade Commissioners, many enquiries are being placed in the hands of active Canadian export firms capable of supplying goods of the many different types required.

Through the Canadian Trade Commissioners enquiries for war materials are being received from the Governments of the British Dominions and of India. Substantial orders totalling several millions of dollars have already been placed for certain materials and close contact is being maintained by the Trade Commissioners with the War Supply Departments of these Governments.

It is the function of the Commercial Intelligence Service to secure adequate and up-to-date information with regard to market conditions and import restrictions in other countries and to convey this information promptly to exporters concerned. This is done through the medium of the Commercial Intelligence Journal and by correspondence. Exporters are invited to subscribe to the Commercial Intelligence Journal and to write to the Director of the Commercial Intelligence Service, or to the Trade Commissioners, for advice about import restrictions or export problems and also for information concerning export markets for particular commodities.

Assistance that can be given by Canadian Trade Commissioners

Many manufacturers and exporters apparently are not fully advised as to the valuable services that can be rendered by Canadian Trade Commissioners. The following summary is therefore issued with a view to rendering the activities of Canadian Trade Commissioners of greater use to manufacturers and exporters generally.

Commercial Information

1. Up-to-date information is available to manufacturers and exporters through the Commercial Intelligence Journal or by direct correspondence with the Department or any of the Canadian Trade Commissioners as to—

- (a) The present and prospective demand for their goods.
- (b) Foreign and local competition (with specimens, catalogues and prices).
- (c) Details of best selling methods.
- (d) Reports on foreign buyers, though the Department cannot assume any responsibility in any opinions expressed by Trade Commissioners. They, however, will use their best endeavours to advise exporters as to the standing of such firms.
- (e) Specifications of articles in particular demand.
- (f) Inquiries for goods, and by means of an efficient system for collecting such inquiries the names can be obtained from time to time from the Commercial Intelligence Branch of the Department at Ottawa.

Agents, Buyers, and Distributors

2. Trade Commissioners will also:—

- (a) Recommend to intending exporters the names of responsible parties in a position to act as agents or buyers and distributors.
- (b) Give every possible assistance to such agents, etc., and will introduce them to influential individuals or associations who may be in a position to buy goods from Canada.
- (c) Give confidential information, when so requested, as to the activities of agents appointed by Canadian exporters, or firms to whom sales have been, or are being, made.

3. Trade Commissioners can assist in advising Canadian exporters and manufacturers:—

- (a) As to the best media in which to place advertisements and the form which such advertisements should take, i.e., their adaptation to the special requirements of the community.
- (b) In the display of catalogues, price lists and samples where they can be seen by potential buyers.
- (c) As to the distribution of trade literature and its probable cost.

General

- 4. (a) Trade Commissioners will always be glad to receive visitors from Canada and introduce them to possible buyers or agents, or put them in touch with such experts as legal advisers, interpreters, and shipping and banking representatives.
- (b) The good offices of Trade Commissioners can always be invoked with a view to settling difficulties which may arise between the Canadian exporters and buyers abroad.
- (c) Trade Commissioners will at any time provide such information as may be available as to freight rates customs, port dues, etc., so as to enable Canadian firms to quote prices for delivery overseas. They will be glad also to provide information respecting cost of travel, regulations applicable to commercial travellers, packing and marking of goods, shipping accommodation, storage arrangements, and any other foreign government regulations or conditions which have to be complied with.

Financial Arrangements

5. Particulars can be obtained with regard to:—

- (a) Terms of credit which may be given to foreign buyers.
- (b) Financial houses and banks who will discount bills or give credit.
- (c) Regulations governing the recovery of debts in foreign countries.
- (d) Disposal of goods abroad contracted for but not accepted by foreign buyers.
- (e) Infringement of trade marks or patent rights; and advice on registration.

Information Necessary to the Trade Commissioner

When a Canadian exporter desires the assistance of a Trade Commissioner in marketing his goods abroad, he should with the first letter provide that officer with the following:—

- (a) Catalogues and best export prices c.i.f. port of entry, or failing that, f.o.b. Canadian port. It is quite useless to send prices f.o.b. factory.
- (b) Details regarding process of manufacture if convenient.

- (c) If not too bulky, samples of what the firms have to offer should be forwarded—not necessarily a full range—and a draft or money order sufficient to cover the customs duties and landing charges on the samples.
- (d) Bankers' references.
- (e) The proportion of output which is available for export, time required to ship from receipt of order and the quantity for which orders will be accepted.
- (f) Details of the experience he has had in the territory served by the Trade Commissioner.
- (g) Information regarding previous connections, if any, which he has either with agents or importers. If connections still exist, what, if any, bearing will they have on fresh contacts that may be established through the efforts of the Trade Commissioner.

The Trade Commissioner will thus be in a position to make a survey of his territory, report the opportunities for the lines to be exported, and can then either place the exporter in communication with reliable importers or recommend suitable agents.

What the Canadian Exporter can do for the Trade Commissioner

The meagre information frequently furnished by Canadian exporters places a serious handicap on the Trade Commissioner in his efforts to market their products.

A general statement, therefore, of the facts about the exporter, his banking references, whether he is already engaged in foreign trade, and for what period and to what extent, are some of the essentials which should be given in the first letter either to the Department or to a Trade Commissioner, particularly the latter. He also wants general data about the commodity which the exporter wishes to sell in that particular market, noting any special advantages pertaining to the line offered, particularly as compared with well-known articles of the same type from other countries. He also wants to know exactly what the manufacturer is himself willing to do to place his goods in the new field: the basis on which sales would be made to the importer or on which goods could be offered for sale by a recognized agent, and the commission that would be paid the latter; what would be required of an importing house or agent in order to obtain the agency for the line; whether the manufacturer would send consignment stock or samples and in what quantity; whether he is prepared to advertise or to co-operate in advertising and to what extent; the facilities possessed by the manufacturer for export shipment, and the kind of supervision that is exercised by him over the packing of goods destined for a distant market.

Prices

Prices should never be quoted from an interior manufacturing point in Canada. Where quotations c.i.f. port of destination are not practicable, they should be given f.o.b. steamer, but it is strongly recommended that prices should be quoted c.i.f. This is a most important point, as the foreign buyer has no definite knowledge of the charges likely to be incurred if quotations are f.o.b. cars at port of shipment and freight rates from some interior point in Canada to the seaboard are unobtainable in foreign countries. He has no means of knowing insurance rates, or the elements that enter into the fixing of the premiums. As a rule he is unable to obtain a quotation of an outward freight rate at an inward port, as the general practice of steamship companies is to refer a request for a freight rate from (say) Montreal to Auckland to the agent in the former city, although an approximate rate may be quoted. The foreign buyer is at a distinct disadvantage unless prices are quoted c.i.f.

Discounts

Discounts should be printed, or typewritten, preferably on a folder or slip accompanying the catalogue. In submitting an illustrated descriptive catalogue to prospective customers the importer should not be placed in the position of having to disclose the exact terms on which the goods are offered to him.

Gross and Net Weight

A knowledge of the gross and net weights per unit quoted is essential. Without these the prospective purchaser is unable to estimate laid down costs.

Summary of Points to be Noted

The fullest possible information in regard to the commodity and complete details on the following points would greatly aid the Trade Commissioners in the intelligent handling of inquiries addressed to them as to the introduction and subsequent marketing of Canadian goods on behalf of exporters:—

1. Cable address, code used, and special code words not in the regular code books.
2. Bankers' references.
3. (a) The basis on which prices are quoted, whether c.i.f. main foreign ports; f.a.s. Canadian ports; or f.o.b. vessel.
- (b) Are prices in Canadian or American funds?
- (c) If prices are c.i.f. and transshipment has to be made, are such items as consular charges and disbursements at port of transshipment and/or unloading for account of buyer?
4. Are quotations firm, or subject to change without notice due to fluctuations in costs of raw material?
5. On what quantity basis are quotations made? Can prices be reduced on quantity orders, and if so how much?
6. Are orders subject to acceptance by exporter?
7. What brand do lines bear, and are these to be sold under this brand in foreign markets?
8. What is the nature of packing? Heavy wooden crates, boxes, new bags or burlap?
9. Are lines stocked and available for immediate shipment? If not, how long after receipt of order will goods go forward?
10. What are your terms? Is there a special discount for cash?
11. What is the gross and net weight in pounds? Measurement in cubic feet?

With the foregoing information on hand, supplemented by recent catalogues and descriptive literature, and, if not too bulky, samples—not necessarily a full range—Trade Commissioners are put in a position to give the best service to Canadian exporters and can either place them in communication with reliable importers or recommend suitable agents.

Trade Commissioners' Tours

The periodical return of Trade Commissioners for official tours of the Dominion is one of the most important factors in effecting practical co-operation between the Canadian exporter and the foreign importer. The Trade Commissioner can during the course of his tour call upon or discuss export problems with practically every firm specially interested in exporting to his territory. The Department endeavours to bring back the Trade Commissioners by a scheme of rotation, giving special consideration to officers in tropical or unhealthy posts, but these visits are always subject to the exigencies of trading conditions, and of the Service generally. Well in advance of the time of arrival in Canada they circularize individual exporters for the purpose of determining what special points they wish to take up and on which full information is secured. In addition to this form of publicity, the department publishes a notice in the Commercial Intelligence Journal inviting firms who may be interested in any particular territory to state whether or not an interview is desired. The names of such firms, together with those with whom the Trade Commissioner has been in communication, form the basis of the itinerary. Firms anxious to interview any Trade Commissioner on tour may do so by communicating with the Director of the service.

Foreign Tariffs Division

Information on the world's customs tariffs and related trade regulations is furnished to exporters and others concerned by the Foreign Tariffs Division of the Department of Trade and Commerce.

The Foreign Tariffs Division assembles reference material taken from the published tariffs and customs laws of various countries and makes use of reports of Canadian Trade Commissioners abroad, miscellaneous official reports, and general reference books. Normally, the International Customs Tariffs Bureau at Brussels, created in 1890, under a convention of many countries, issues translations of the world's tariffs, but this Bureau has not continued functioning during the European war.

As well as study of tariff schedules and official rulings for the purpose of determining rates of duty applicable to particular goods, the work calls for investigation of commercial treaties, methods of valuation of goods for duty purposes, anti-dumping legislation, Canadian content required for applying tariff preference, the forms of certificates of origin prescribed, invoicing and consular procedure.

The Foreign Tariffs Division answers specific enquiries, prepares articles for the Commercial Intelligence Journal, and issues leaflets and circulars. It co-operates with other branches of the government service in assembling data for tariff negotiations between Canada and other countries.

In recent years import licensing, quota allotments, exchange restrictions and related systems of controlling trade in some foreign countries became of more importance than customs duties. Following the outbreak of the European war in 1939, import licensing was also adopted widely in British countries. The Division's activities extend to furnishing data on these subjects and any other governmental trade control measures that would affect Canadian exports, such as merchandise marks laws, food standards, regulations on animal and plant pests.

Subsidized Steamship Services

Under the Mail Subsidies and Steamship Subventions Branch of the Department of Trade and Commerce, subsidies for ocean services are paid to assist in the maintenance of trade communications between Canada and other countries for the use of Canadian exporters and for the maintenance and development of our foreign markets; and also for the carriage of mails between Canada and certain foreign countries.

Local services are subsidized to assist in maintaining adequate transportation by water from the Atlantic and Pacific coasts of Canada for passengers, mails and freight.

Since the outbreak of war all local subsidized services, and the greater part of our subsidized ocean services, have been continued, although the latter have been reduced to some extent by war conditions, including the requisitioning of certain ships for purposes connected with the war.

In addition to carrying on these activities, either the Director of the Branch, or the Inspector of Subsidized Steamship Services has represented the Department of Trade and Commerce on inter-departmental committees formed either before or after the outbreak of war, including the Emergency Legislation Committee, the Committee on Ships and Aircraft, the Committee on the Conservation of Canadian Shipping, the Sub-Committee of Defence Co-ordination Committee on War Risk Insurance, and the Committee on the Exportation of Key Commodities.

Canadian Shipping Board

The Canadian Shipping Board was established by Order-in-Council, P.C. 4251, dated 20th December, 1939. Having a limited ocean marine of her own, Canada has always had to rely to a great extent on British and foreign tramp ships and liners to carry her overseas trade. When war came the tonnage of such ships available contracted severely because the British Government was forced to institute strict control over all United Kingdom vessels and neutral shipowners were prohibited, or became reluctant, to carry cargoes between belligerent countries. As a result, the Department of Trade and Commerce received numerous appeals from exporters for assistance in obtaining ships or shipping space and, although it was able in many instances to assist, the fact became obvious that some special organization would be required to deal with wartime shipping problems.

These problems were considered by an interdepartmental committee, comprised of senior civil servants, which recommended that a formal organization be created and The Canadian Shipping Board was, therefore, established in December, 1939. Its broad purpose was to centralize Canada's wartime shipping problems and to devise and co-ordinate measures for meeting them. More specifically, it was created to help maintain Canada's export trade by assisting Canadian exporters to find liner space for their shipments or to charter vessels where these were necessary for bulk exports. In addition, the Board filled a need for a Canadian governmental agency capable of dealing directly, and co-operating effectively with the administrative departments of the United Kingdom Ministry of Shipping which, following the outbreak of war, had assumed complete control over British merchant ships and shipping.

The powers given to the Board were such as to cover the objects set forth above. It took over the Ship Licensing Board's function of controlling the foreign voyages of all Canadian vessels exceeding 500 gross tons to ensure that they were employed to the greatest advantage in the prosecution of the war. In April control over the purchase and chartering of all vessels over 500 gross tons by all Canadian interests was assumed by the Board, the chief purpose being to enable it to co-operate with the Ministry of Shipping in its efforts to avoid inflation in neutral charter rates and shipping values.

Among other duties the Board was given the task of adapting to Canadian conditions and of supervising in so far as the Dominion is concerned various measures introduced to control foreign shipping. One of these was the British Ship Warrant scheme, for which the Board devised the so-called Ship's Privilege Licence system as a Canadian supplement, the purpose being to assist in the blockade of enemy countries by discouraging foreign vessels from engaging in trades helpful to the enemy.

The Board, which consists of eight members, reports to the Government through the Minister of Trade and Commerce. The Deputy Minister of that Department is Chairman and the Director of Trade Routes and Steamship Subsidies is a member. In addition, the Inspector of Subsidized Steamship Services, who is a Naval Reserve Officer, represents the Department of National Defence for Naval Services on the Board. The remaining five members of the Board consist of three representatives from the Departments of External Affairs, National Revenue and Transport respectively, together with the Transport Controller, and the Director of Shipping who, in addition to being a member is the Board's chief executive officer.

Communications in regard to the business of the Board should be addressed to The Secretary, The Canadian Shipping Board, Room 178, West Block, Ottawa.

Publicity and Advertising Division

To meet the increasing demand from Canadian and foreign publications for informative and interpretive material relative to both external and internal affairs, the Publicity and Advertising Division was organized about thirteen years ago. Its primary functions are to prepare such articles, or supply material for articles, to trade and industrial publications both at home and abroad. It also places in the Canadian press such advertising as may be deemed desirable from time to time to direct attention to the services which the Department offers to Canadian business men and in selected publications in foreign countries featuring Canadian sources of supply and Canadian products.

Canadian Trade Commissioners are furnished regularly for local distribution with news items and pictorial matter concerning Canada which is finding its way to an ever increasing extent in the rotogravure and other sections of the leading newspapers throughout the world.

With the co-operation of the Department of Transport and through the Canadian Press, a daily radio news service thoroughly Canadian in character is provided to all shipping on the Pacific Ocean within a listening radius.

Canadian Government Motion Picture Bureau

The Canadian Government Motion Picture Bureau, whose offices and plant are situated in Ottawa, was originally organized in 1918, but in its present form in 1922 to function as the central government organization for the production and distribution of films, photographs and other photographic materials such as enlargements, transparencies, film and lantern slides, etc., for all Dominion government departments. Since the establishment of the National Film Board under the National Film Act, 1939, the Bureau has functioned as the chief production agency of this Board. The Central Government Film Distribution Service, set up under the National Film Act to handle the distribution of all government films under the jurisdiction of the National Film Board, is operated in conjunction with the Motion Picture Bureau.

The activities of the Motion Picture Bureau are carried on under four divisions, viz: administration and information; motion picture division; 16 mm film division; and still photographic division. The Bureau's plant is modern and completely equipped with the most up-to-date facilities for the production and processing of all kinds of sound and silent films, film slides, lantern slides, photographs, transparencies, enlargements, and other such photographic material, which are utilized by government departments for the purposes of disseminating information with respect to Canada, Canadian resources, basic industries, products, scenery, and other tourist attractions, etc., and by this means to promote trade and tourist travel as well as create knowledge of and interest in the Dominion.

The bulk of the film and photographic work in field, studio and laboratory is performed by its permanent staff, but contact is maintained with selected cinematographers and photographers in all parts of Canada to whom, if occasion demands, assignments may be given, thus ensuring, at all times, Dominion-wide coverage. Close co-operation is also maintained with the Photographic Division of the Bureau of Public Information, the Photographic Section of the R.C.A.F., the Photographic Department of the Canadian National Railways, commercial film producing concerns in Canada and elsewhere, the newsreels, etc.

The following table indicates the distribution of films representing a total footage of approximately 5,500,000 feet in active circulation as of December 31st, 1940:

In addition, a series of sound films dealing with Canadian industries, resources, scenic and tourist attractions is in active circulation among the theatres in Canada, the United Kingdom, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, the British West Indies, India, the United States and other parts of the English-speaking world.

Canadian Government Trade Commissioners are kept supplied with films and photographs for circulation, exhibition and publication. The Bureau not only co-operates with the other Branches of the Department of Trade and Commerce, but with other Dominion Government Departments and organizations such as the National Film Board, the Bureau of Public Information, etc. A large amount of pictorial display material is furnished for the use of Canadian Government Exhibition Commission, the Director of Trade Publicity in Great Britain, the Canadian Travel Bureau and other such organizations.

The still photograph division maintains a library of over 30,000 photographs of Canada, thousands of which are distributed to the press, trade and other publications each year.

In addition to its other activities, since the outbreak of war, the Bureau has been closely associated with the Bureau of Public Information, the Department of National Defence, and the Naval and Military authorities in the production of film and photographic material for press, publicity and record purposes.

Exhibitions and Publicity in the United Kingdom

In 1938 all Canadian publicity services in the United Kingdom, including exhibitions, advertising, publicity and film activities, were unified and reorganized. The financial provision for governmental assistance in that connection is made in the estimates of the Department of Trade and Commerce and subject to the supervision of the Minister.

Under the chairmanship of the High Commissioner, an Advisory Committee on Publicity supervises the vote for government advertising and publicity in the United Kingdom. The members of this committee include the Chief Trade Commissioner, the Director of Exhibitions and Publicity, and representatives of the Department of External Affairs on the staff of the High Commissioner. Representatives in London of other government departments, particularly Agriculture, Fisheries, and Mines and Resources, are afforded an opportunity of suggesting items for the agenda and attending meetings.

In addition to the Director of Exhibitions and Publicity, the headquarters in London consist of a Trade Publicity Officer, an Exhibition Commissioner and the necessary staff of designers, decorators, carpenters, etc., and warehouses for storage purposes. The Commission is represented in Ottawa by a liaison officer with a branch office at St. Catharines, Ontario, for the collection and preparation of exhibits.

While originally the Commission was concerned in organizing Canada's participation in international exhibitions, gradually continuous exhibition propaganda to stimulate throughout the year.

the sale of Canadian products especially in the United Kingdom, has been developed to a point where this work, measured by expenditure, accounts for seventy-five per cent. of its activities. The aim is now to work out methods by which practical assistance can be extended to Canadian producers and manufacturers in accordance with the opportunities offered to increase the sale of their goods through the medium of exhibitions of various kinds.

The functions of the Exhibitions and Publicity unit are mainly to organize Canadian exhibits at international exhibitions; to provide opportunities for advertising Canadian goods by participation in exhibitions; to assist Canadian exporters and their agents to display their products under favourable conditions by other than participation in exhibitions—such as shop windows, displays, etc.; and, to carry out the policy laid down with regard to advertising and publicity.

In Ottawa an Advisory Committee on Trade Publicity Overseas comprising representatives of the Department of Trade and Commerce, External Affairs, Agriculture, and Fisheries, were set up with the object of securing effective collaboration between the several departments concerned in regard to special aspects of government advertising and publicity abroad.

Canada Grain Act

Under the Canada Grain Act of 1912 the Board of Grain Commissioners for Canada was created as a semi-judicial and administrative body to administer the Act. Its duties and powers are to provide for the inspection and weighing of grain; to license and supervise the operation of grain elevators; to register warehouse receipts for grain delivered to terminal and eastern elevators; to collect and collate grain statistics; to maintain a grain research laboratory; to operate terminal elevators constructed by the Dominion Government; and to inquire into any matter upon or without complaint made relating to the handling of grain under the Act. It also administers the Inland Water Freight Rates Act.

The board, which consists of a chief commissioner and two commissioners, has its offices in Winnipeg. Four assistant commissioners, stationed respectively at Winnipeg, Calgary, Saskatoon and Fort William, investigate complaints and thereafter make a full report to the board. In addition to the executive offices, which include the secretary with clerical staff, the Licence and Bonding and Statistics Branch, the organization comprises the Inspection, Weighing and Registration branches, the management of the Canadian Government Elevators, the Grain Appeal Tribunals to decide on appeals from decisions of grain inspecting officers, and Committees on Grain Standards to select and settle standards for the different grades of grain in the Eastern and Western divisions.

Inspection offices are located at Winnipeg, Calgary and Edmonton for primary inspection, at Fort William and Vancouver for terminal and final inspection, at Montreal and Toronto for resampling and checking western grain passing through the Eastern division, and grading grain grown in the Eastern division. Inspection services are also maintained at all other points at which terminal elevators are situated. The Weighing Branch provides weighing services on all grain delivered to or shipped from terminal elevators and maintains staffs at all points at which terminal elevators are situated. The Registration Branch records all terminal and Eastern warehouse receipts and transfer receipts for grain unloaded into terminal or Eastern elevators, and cancels these receipts when the grain is shipped. Of the public terminal elevators constructed by the Department of Trade and Commerce only those at Moose Jaw, Saskatoon, Lethbridge, Calgary, Edmonton, and Prince Rupert are now maintained and operated by a general manager under the board. The Grain Research Laboratory at Winnipeg acts in an advisory capacity to the board, conducts investigations to determine the value of the different grades and varieties of grain, and investigates problems connected with grading, transportation and storage, moisture content and other problems peculiar to grain.

The Board is also charged with the administration of The Grain Futures Act, 1939. The provisions of this Act, however, had not been put into force at January 1st, 1941.

Under The Prairie Farm Assistance Act of 1939 the Board collects from producers in the three Prairie Provinces and the Peace River District of British Columbia one per centum of the purchase price of all Western wheat, oats, barley and rye sold to licensees under the Canada Grain Act.

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics

A Commission on Statistics in 1912 recommended a series of specific reforms and enlargements in Canadian statistics, and a policy of statistical co-ordination for the Dominion, under central direction.

Following the recommendations of this report, the office of Dominion Statistician was created in 1915 and three years later the Dominion Bureau of Statistics was set up by statute as a central statistical organization.

At present the main branches of the Bureau are: Administration; population—census, social analysis, and vital statistics; agricultural statistics; fisheries, furs, animal and dairy products; mining, metallurgical and chemical; forestry and allied industries; construction; general manufactures; external trade (imports and exports); internal trade; transportation; financial statistics; statistics of administration of justice; institutional statistics; educational statistics; and general statistics.

The main achievement of the bureau has been in the organization of the several subjects in correlation with each other in accordance with this general plan, and the consequent establishment of a comprehensive viewpoint of the country as a "going concern." In addition, there has been created what is frequently called a central "thinking office" in statistics, continuously in touch with general conditions and the line of probable developments.

The final concept in the organization of the Bureau of Statistics is that of a national laboratory for social and economic research. Statistics are not merely a record of what has been, but are for use in planning what shall be; it is the duty of a statistical bureau to assist directly in the day-to-day problems of administration, as well as to provide their theoretic background. One of the most significant of recent developments in administration is the extent to which statistical organization has been increased as a guide to national policy. Though its usefulness has only begun, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics has laid the foundations for a service comparable with the increasingly important position taken by Canada in the economic and political world.

Review of Canada's Foreign Trade, 1939

The upward movement in Canada's trade, interrupted in 1938, was re-established in 1939. Imports increased by 10.9 per cent. to $751,056,000. Domestic exports gained 10.4 per cent., being valued at $924,926,000, as compared with $837,584,000 in the previous year. In the case of both imports and exports declines were recorded in the first four months of 1939 as compared with the corresponding months in 1938, but the vigorous upward surge in the trade of the later months was sufficient to raise the year's total as indicated above.

Although the declared values of both imports and exports remained somewhat below the high level attained in 1937, this was due entirely to lower prices rather than to smaller volume. In volume or quantity, imports and exports in 1939 reached new high post-depression levels.

Due to the greater expansion in imports the large favourable balance of trade on merchandise account, which in 1938 amounted to $171,233,000, advanced to $184,866,000 in 1939. Gross revenue collected on imports increased from $92,297,000 to $103,283,000. This rise of 11.9 per cent. was somewhat greater than the rise in the value of imports, and the average ad valorem rate of duty (i.e., the amount collected expressed as a percentage of the value of imports), was accordingly higher than in the preceding year. The percentage of imports which were free of duty stood at 43.1 per cent. in 1939 and 44.1 per cent. in 1938.

Canada's Position in World Trade

Owing to the dislocation of international trade since the outbreak of hostilities and the impossibility of obtaining trade statistics of many countries for 1939, it is futile, if not impossible, to attempt to rate the leading trading countries in order of importance of the value of their imports and exports. Accordingly, statistics covering these particulars are not published for 1939. The relative position of twelve countries in 1937 and 1938 is given below:—

Proportions of Trade in Raw and Manufactured Products

The stage attained in the industrial development of a country is indicated by the character of the goods it imports and exports. In the early years of Canada's development imports were made up chiefly of manufactured products and exports of raw and semi-manufactured products. Since the opening of the twentieth century this has been almost reversed; a large percentage of the imports consisting of raw and semi-manufactured products for use in Canadian manufacturing industries, and the exports consisting predominantly of products which have undergone some process of manufacture. In fact, the leading manufactures of Canada are for the processing of raw materials in the production of which Canada excels, and many of these processed domestic products are marketed abroad. Furthermore, as the population of the country grows, the range of elaborated goods formerly imported, which may be manufactured on a competitive basis of mass production within the country, expands, so that there are now many industries in Canada, serving the domestic and even foreign markets, using imported raw materials such as rubber, cotton and sugar. Since the opening of the present century Canada has passed through much the same stages of development in her economic life as did the United States during the last quarter of the nineteenth century, although the trend in Canada has been more pronounced in increasing the proportion of partly and fully manufactured goods as compared with raw materials exported rather than in increasing the proportion of raw materials compared with that of partly and fully manufactured goods imported.

In Canada, grains (chiefly wheat) and in the United States, raw cotton, grains (principally wheat) and raw tobacco are the leading commodities which comprise the bulk of the exports of raw materials. It is of interest to note the results in Canada and the United States when certain staple raw materials of farm origin, which are reproducible annually, are eliminated, such as grains, fresh fruits and vegetables, seeds and raw tobacco, for both countries, and raw cotton for the United States. The results, for the years 1900 to 1939, are set forth in the following table:—

Gold in Canadian Export Trade

Exports of gold in Canadian trade statistics were distinguished in previous reports as between monetary and non-monetary. Monetary gold exports were described as those which entailed a reduction in the Dominion's monetary gold stocks. All other gold exported (classed as non-monetary) was shown as merchandise, and included with the total merchandise exports.

The fact that gold is a money metal gives it peculiar attributes which distinguish it from other commodities in trade. In particular, the movement of gold in international trade is determined almost exclusively by monetary factors. The amount of exports may fluctuate widely from month to month owing to other than ordinary trade or commercial considerations. In addition, gold is generally acceptable. It does not have to surmount tariff barriers and is normally assured a market at a relatively fixed price. For these reasons provision was made in previous trade reports for a supplementary table showing exports from Canada excluding all gold.

It is further to be noted, gold does not move in international trade in any direct or normal relation to sales and purchases. It may be bought or sold abroad without moving in or out across the frontier, the sales or purchases in such cases being recognized by simply setting aside or "earmarking" the gold in the vaults of the central bank. Trade statistics deal only with physical movements, sales or purchases of gold which do not involve an actual movement being more properly regarded as an "invisible item" and taken care of in the "International Balance of Payments" statements. Changes in the Bank of Canada's stock of gold under earmark do not enter, therefore, into the trade statistics.

The publication of statistics showing the gross imports and exports of gold has been temporarily suspended as from September, 1939. Statistics for periods prior to this time have been accordingly revised to exclude all gold formerly included in the total of merchandise exports.

Statistics showing the net exports of non-monetary gold, including changes in stocks held under earmark, are published as a supplement to the trade figures, and are given on page 150.

Principal Exports from Canada, 1939

Total exports of Canadian produce showed an increase in value of 10.4 per cent. in the calendar year 1939 over the previous year, standing at the figure of $925 million. All the main groups reflected the increase except Miscellaneous Commodities. Agricultural and Vegetable Products, and Wood, Wood Products and Paper each rose by some $30 million. These are ordinarily the two largest groups, and in 1939 they together comprised one-half of the total exports by value.

In the Wood group more than one-half of the increase over the previous year was in unmanufactured wood, which accounts for only one-third of the total value of the group. Hemlock logs, and planks and boards of hemlock, spruce, and pine showed particularly large increases both in value and quantity. Red cedar shingles, at nearly $8 million, were up by more than $3 million. In accordance with the tendency of the past few years pulpwood fell some 12.8 per cent. to less than $12 million, and manufactured wood, of which the main item is chemical pulp, rose very little. Newsprint paper rose $11 million to $115,686,000. In the past few years exports of wood pulp have declined greatly, which is in contrast to newsprint paper.

Of the increase of $25,000,000 in the "Mainly Food" section of Agricultural and Vegetable Products, some $20 million is due to expansion in the exports of wheat. This is entirely due to increase in quantity since the average price was below the 1938 level. Exports of fruits declined, largely because of smaller shipments of fresh apples which fell nearly $4 million. Exports of vegetables rose, the principal item involved being canned tomatoes which at $5,755,000 was two and a half times its 1938 value. Wheat flour and barley, respectively the second and third most important items in grains and products, fell somewhat in value as compared with the previous year, though wheat flour rose more than one third in quantity.

In the "Other than Food" section of Agricultural and Vegetable Products, whiskey exports fell by almost $3 million from the figure of well over $10 million attained in 1938, but this was more than counterbalanced by a doubling of exports of leaf tobacco both in quantity and value. Rubber boots and shoes at $4,016,000 were up 14 per cent., mostly due to a rise in price, and tire casings at $7,374,000 showed a slight increase over the previous year.

Next in value of exports to the two groups discussed above, is Non-Ferrous Metal Products. The seven important metals—nickel ($58,000,000); copper ($53,000,000); aluminium ($26,000,000); lead ($10,000,000); zinc ($10,000,000); silver ($9,000,000); and platinum ($6,000,000), showed little change in the aggregate as compared with the previous year, the increase of $5½ million in nickel, and $1 million in lead being somewhat more than counterbalanced by declines in silver bullion (down $4 million), and platinum concentrates (down $3 million).

Non-Metallic Mineral exports were up over the calendar year 1938, reflecting a rise in the value of exports of the chief item, asbestos, from $13,317,000 to $15,845,000. Crude artificial abrasives rose some 16.1 per cent. to $4,380,000.

Animals and Animal Products were up 11.6 per cent., at $131,804,000. The principal item of increase was beef cattle, which rose by $6 million to $13,808,000. All of the increase was accounted for by greater sales to the United States, which took 95 per cent. of the exports. Fish, meats, milk and products, and furs, all rose slightly.

The Iron group was higher by 5.0 per cent. than in the previous year. A very considerable part of the increase was contributed by ferro-manganese and ferro-silicon. Machinery ($10,873,000), and vehicles ($25,950,000), both showed slight rises, while farm implements ($6,975,000) declined somewhat.

Among the remaining smaller groups, Textiles ($14,428,000) rose slightly; Chemicals ($24,-263,000) rose considerably due to rises in fertilizers (up $2,100,000), paints (up $600,000); and sodium compounds (up $800,000); and Miscellaneous Commodities fell 16 per cent., to $16,448,000.

The following table shows exports of eighty-five leading commodities from Canada in 1939, with increase or decrease compared with 1938. The items shown account for over 92 per cent. of the total exports. Of the fifty-eight items for which statistics of both quantity and value are available, thirty-nine showed increases in both respects; four showed an increase in quantity and a decline in value; three showed an increase in value and a decline in quantity; while twelve declined in both quantity and value. For twenty-seven items no quantity statistics were available, and of these, fourteen increased in value while thirteen declined.

Distribution of Canada's Trade by Continents and Countries

The increase in Canada's imports in 1939 over 1938 did not apply to all continents in equal measure. Europe and South America lost ground, while North America gained substantially. The net result of the changes was to increase even more the predominance of North America as a source of supply to Canada. The United States was responsible for the whole of the increase in imports from North America and supplied 66 per cent. of Canada's external purchases in the calendar year 1939. The shares of Asia, Africa, and Oceania all increased by slight margins, and purchases from these continents, combined, equalled but 9 per cent. of the total imports.

North America came first also in purchases from Canada. Europe (including the United Kingdom), which has generally led in respect of purchases of Canadian products, this year was exceeded by some $20,000,000. The United States absorbed 37.9 per cent. of the total exports from Canada in 1938, exceeding the United Kingdom which bought 37.2 per cent.; but in 1939 the margin of the United States was increased when its share rose to 41.1 per cent., and that of the United Kingdom fell to 35.5. The continents of Europe and North America, dominated by the great markets of the United Kingdom and United States, respectively, together accounted for 86 per cent. of Canada's total exports. This was little different from the proportion of the preceding year. The remaining 14 per cent. was distributed principally between Asia and Oceania, the former taking as much, and the latter more than South America and Africa combined.

The following statement on "Imports from Forty Leading Countries" shows how predominant the two great English-speaking countries are as a source of Canadian imports. The United States supplied 66.1 per cent. of the Dominion's imports in 1939, while the United Kingdom, although having about one quarter of the United States' share in Canada's imports, had, nevertheless, almost ten times as large a share as British Straits Settlements, which since 1937 has ranked third. The countries shown in the table account for about 99 per cent. of total imports in each year.

The following table shows "Canada's Domestic Exports to Forty Leading Countries". The countries shown account for over 98 per cent. of total domestic exports in each year. The United Kingdom was first in each of the years 1936 to 1938, while the United States was first in 1939.

The share of the United Kingdom and the United States in Canada's export trade rose somewhat in 1939 to 76.6 per cent. Exports to Australia declined slightly to $32,000,000 but that country maintained its place as third among Canada's customers.

Statistics of Canadian exports, by countries, should be read with the qualification that all the goods shown as exported to some countries may not finally be consumed in those countries, while on the other hand other countries may ultimately buy and use more Canadian goods than the Canadian export statistics indicate. For example, exports to the United Kingdom are known to include large amounts of wheat and other grains shipped "on order". The final destination is not known at the time of exportation from Canada. Similarly, considerable quantities of Canadian exports are consigned to one or other of the great European free ports and thence transhipped to the country of consumption.

Trade of Canada Via United States

The three following tables show in summary the value of Canada's imports and exports via the United States and principal commodities exported from Canada to overseas countries via the United States and via Canadian sea or river ports. Included with exports shown as being shipped via the United States are substantial amounts of grain, and possibly other commodities, exported from Canada (e.g., from Fort William and Port Arthur) via the United States, which are subsequently re-routed from United States for shipment via Canadian sea or river ports, chiefly Montreal, and to this extent the figures respecting exports via the United States are overstated.

Agriculture

Agriculture occupies a very prominent position in the Canadian economy. It supports about $3\frac{1}{4}$ million people or one-third of the population. It gives employment to 1.7 million persons. The gross value of all commodities produced on Canadian farms in 1940 amounted to nearly 1.2 billion dollars, and 715 million dollars was realized from the sale of farm products. The current value of farm capital in land and buildings, machinery and live stock is over 4.5 billion dollars.

A large part of the Canadian agricultural industry was established to serve foreign markets. About one-third of the farms are located in the Prairie Provinces, an ideal region for the production of hard spring wheat. The export of wheat produced in this area has been an important source of exchange for servicing external debts during the past two decades. The central provinces of Ontario and Quebec, and the Maritime Provinces have agricultural industries which serve mainly the domestic market, although these provinces have made important contributions to export trade in cheese, potatoes and bacon. In the far west the province of British Columbia is chiefly noted for its production of fruits and has developed a considerable trade both to the south and to Europe particularly in apples. In certain sections of the Prairie Provinces, especially southwestern Saskatchewan and southern Alberta, the cattle industry has maintained a considerable export trade in Canadian cattle to both the United Kingdom and the United States.

The development of urban industries in Canada, however, has brought about a considerable change in Canadian agriculture. The provision of a larger domestic market has led to greater diversification and very considerable development in the production of fluid milk, butter, concentrated milk products, vegetables, tobacco and fruit.

Because of the dependence of a large section of Canadian agriculture on the export market, good progress has been made in setting up standards and grades to place farm products in a high competitive position in foreign markets. As a result of strict grading standards and well developed inspection services, Canadian wheat, bacon, cheese, potatoes and other products have been recognized as of high quality in markets outside the country.

Production of agricultural commodities in 1940 was particularly favourable throughout the Dominion. Wheat production was especially high and the second largest crop in history, amounting to 547 million bushels, was harvested. Feed grain yields were satisfactory and hay crops were generally good. The 1940 apple crop was considerably smaller than in previous years owing to storm damage in Nova Scotia. Severe frost damage seriously reduced the 1940 tobacco crop. Production of live stock and animal products in 1940 was at a high level. The largest marketing of hogs on record and a high output of dairy products placed total production from live stock well above previous records.

The statistics in the following table have been selected to indicate the extent of Canadian agriculture and the diversity of commodities produced.

Fisheries

The total value of output of the Canadian fisheries in 1939 was $40,075,922, compared with $40,492,976 in the preceding year. These totals comprise the value of the fish as marketed in the various forms—fresh, canned, smoked, dried, etc. To the total value in 1939 the sea fisheries contributed $33,972,310, or 85 per cent., and the inland fisheries $6,103,612, or 15 per cent. Compared with the preceding year the value of the sea fisheries shows an increase of $198,162 and the value of the inland fisheries a decrease of $615,216, making for both fisheries, combined, a decrease of $417,054.

The salmon fishery is by far the most important, its value of production of $13,409,292 in 1939, representing 33 per cent. of the total for all kinds of fish. Following, each with a value of nearly four million dollars, are lobster and herring, while cod, with slightly over three million dollars is fourth on the list of the chief commercial fishes.

Fish marketed for consumption fresh, including fresh fillets, had a total value in 1939 of $16,992,648, the canned product was valued at $15,449,190, and the dried at $979,240, leaving $6,654,844 as the value of fish marketed in all other forms, as green-salted, smoked, boneless, oil, meal, etc.

Among the provinces, British Columbia takes first place in order of marketed value of product, while Nova Scotia is second and New Brunswick third. Following is a statement showing by percentage the position which each province occupies in relation to the total for Canada: British Columbia, 44 per cent.; Nova Scotia, 22 per cent.; New Brunswick, 13 per cent.; Ontario, 8 per cent.; Quebec, 5 per cent.; Manitoba, 4 per cent.; Prince Edward Island, 2 per cent.; Saskatchewan, 1 per cent.; and Alberta, 1 per cent.

The quantity of fish of all kinds, including shell fish, taken by Canadian fishermen during the year amounted to 10,682,357 cwt., with a value at the point of landing of $21,931,437, compared with a catch of 10,741,150 cwt. and a landed value of $22,829,549 in 1938.

Trade.—In view of the immense quantity of fish taken annually by Canadian fishermen, the trade must depend to a large extent upon the foreign market as an outlet for the product. From 60 to 70 per cent. of the yearly capture is an average export, of which the United States takes approximately one-half and the United Kingdom one-fourth. In the calendar year 1939, total exports amounted to $29,641,232 of which $14,761,128 went to the United States and $8,718,246 to the United Kingdom. The most important single export is canned salmon (to the United Kingdom and European markets), followed by fresh lobster, fresh salmon, fresh whitefish, canned lobster, and dried cod. For fresh fish the United States is the chief market. Canadian imports of fish in 1939 amounted to $3,438,644.

Forest Resources

In Canada there are approximately one hundred and sixty different species and varieties of plants reaching tree size. Only thirty-one of these are coniferous, but their wood forms 80 per cent. of the standing timber and 95 per cent. of the sawn timber. While the actual number of species of deciduous-leaved trees seems large in comparison to their commercial importance, out of a total of some ninety species and varieties only four or five are worthy of comparison with the conifers.

Of the total area under forest at the present time, amounting to 1,223,522 square miles, about 360,548 square miles carries merchantable timber, and 408,915 square miles carries young growth which if protected from fire and other damage will eventually produce merchantable timber. All this area is so situated as to be commercially exploitable at present. The remaining 454,059 square miles is considered as non-productive or unprofitable to operate under present conditions, although most of it will undoubtedly become commercially exploitable in the near future. In round figures some ninety per cent. of Canada's forest area is still owned by the state.

Forest Depletion

It has been estimated that Canada's total forest production in 1938 involved the cutting of 2,652,698,000 cubic feet of standing timber. This constitutes only the depletion for use and to it must be added the volume of material destroyed by fire, which averages 304,000,000 cubic feet of merchantable timber and the young growth equivalent to 264,000,000. Insects and fungi destroy annually at least 700,000,000 cubic feet, making a total drain on our forest resources of more than 3,920,698,000 cubic feet in 1938. The latest available estimate places Canada's forest resources at 273,656 million cubic feet of standing timber. There is a steady increase in volume taking place in all healthy stands of timber due to annual growth; this can be stimulated by the application of scientific forest management. It is now a profitable investment to plant trees in Canada under certain conditions.

Production

The production of sawn timber in Canada reached its maximum in 1911 with a reported cut of 4,918,202 M. ft. b.m. The 1938 production represents an increase of 5.9 per cent. in quantity from 1937. The products of the group of industries under sawmill operations are compared for 1937 and 1938 in the preceding table.

Fur Trade

Great changes have taken place in the fur trade since the early days when it dominated all other pursuits and inspired the exploration that opened to colonization the vast country which is now Canada; but the historic trade retains a position of great importance in the commerce of the Dominion, and although the advance of lumbering, mining and agricultural settlement and improved methods of capture have driven fur-bearing animals farther into the wilds, there is a vast area in the north, unsuitable for settlement, where, with adequate protection, a fur-bearing animal population may be maintained, which will furnish each year, a large harvest of furs.

CONSERVATION—The conservation of the fur bearers of Canada is a matter coming under the jurisdiction of the respective Provincial and Territorial Governments. Nevertheless, the Dominion as a whole is concerned in the conservation of fur and of all wild-life resources. It was to co-ordinate the wild-life conservation efforts of the various Dominion Departments that the Advisory Board on Wild Life Protection was organized in 1916. The Board is specially authorized to advise with respect to the administration of the Migratory Birds Convention Act and the Northwest Game Act, but has dealt with many other problems of wild-life conservation. Through conferences of provincial and Dominion officials which were convened for many years by the former Department of the Interior, but are now arranged by the Department of Mines and Resources, uniform and concerted action has been taken and the conservation of Canada's wild-life resources has been advanced. The general policy followed with regard to the fur-bearing animals has been mainly along two lines; first, to so regulate the taking of animals by limitation of catch or close season as to prevent their extinction in districts where natural conditions provide a suitable habitat; and second, to provide sanctuaries in strategic places which serve as reservoirs from which large areas of surrounding wild country may be naturally restocked.

Fur Farming—The industry of fur farming now plays a most important part in the fur trade of Canada, the value of pelts of ranch-bred animals representing approximately 40 per cent. of the total value of the raw fur production of the Dominion. For many years fur farming was concerned almost entirely with the silver fox, but more recently mink raising has become an important branch of the industry. Other kinds of fur-bearers—red fox, cross fox, blue fox, raccoon, skunk, marten, fisher, fitch—are also found on the farms, but their numbers are small in comparison with the numbers of silver foxes and minks. To the list of fur-bearing animals on Canadian fur farms has been added the valuable chinchilla, a native of South America. The 1939 census of fur farms records three farms—one in Saskatchewan and two in Alberta—raising chinchillas.

The chief markets for Canadian furs are London and New York; the trade tables for the 12 months ended June 30, 1939, show that of the total of $14,288,568 worth of raw furs exported, the United Kingdom received $8,436,144 and the United States $5,087,038. Some years ago Montreal took a position as an International fur market, holding the first Canadian fur auction sale in 1920. At the sales held in Montreal during the year 1939 the pelts sold numbered 1,299,695, while the value amounted to $3,917,453. Fur auction sales are held also at Winnipeg, Edmonton and Vancouver. The manufacture of fur goods (coats, capes, scarves, muffs, etc.) constitutes an important Canadian industry, giving employment in 1938 to 3,500 persons and producing goods valued at $16,012,245. There is also the fur dressing and dyeing industry which operates on a custom basis. The number of skins treated in 1938 was 4,197,079, the chief items being muskrat and rabbit.

Minerals

Canada's mineral industry is second in importance among the primary industries of the Dominion. It is surpassed in value of output only by the great basic industry of agriculture and brings to the nation a prestige far beyond the monetary measure of the mineral output.

In 1938, among the mineral producing countries of the world, Canada stood first in nickel, platinum metals and asbestos, second in radium and uranium, third in gold, silver, (aluminum from imported ores) and copper and fourth in lead and zinc.

Ontario, Quebec and British Columbia are the three leading mineral producing provinces though Alberta and Nova Scotia lead in coal production. The output of minerals from Manitoba and Saskatchewan has increased during recent years and new developments in the Northwest Territories indicate great mineral possibilities in that area.

Employment

Since 1920, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics has conducted monthly surveys of the employment situation in eight leading industrial groups—manufacturing, logging, mining, communications, transportation, construction, services and trade. The sample of the total wage-earners of the Dominion included in these inquiries is large, and the results constitute a valuable index to the current fluctuations in business conditions. During the months, January 1-December 1, 1940, data were tabulated from an average of 12,114 establishments employing an average staff of 1,215,431 persons; the working forces varied from 1,093,930 at April 1, to 1,364,720 at the beginning of November.

Based on the 1926 average as 100, the index averaged 124.2 in 1940, compared with 113.9 in 1939, 111.8 in 1938, and 114.1 in 1937. In 1929, when industrial employment reached its previous maximum in this record of twenty years, the average index was 119.0. From July 1 to November 1, successively new, all-time peaks were established; the index for the latter date was nearly twenty per cent. higher than at the opening of the year, and was 12.6 per cent. above the figure for the same month in 1939.

A brief review of the situation shows that firms in the various provinces reported improvement in 1940 over 1939, while activity also considerably increased in the eight cities whose statistics are segregated each month. Employment in all industries except highway construction, averaged higher than in 1939; in building construction, on the other hand, activity was greater than in any other year since 1931.

The index in manufacturing, (1926 = 100), averaged 131.3, compared with 112.3 in 1939, 111.0 in 1938, and 114.4 in 1937, while in 1929, the pre-war maximum, the figure had been 117.1. Employment in manufacturing increased uninterruptedly from January 1, 1940, to the end of the year. The index at December 1 was 144.7, or 22 per cent. higher than at the first of January; this gain greatly exceeded the average increase of not quite 10 per cent. from January to December in the years, 1921-1939. Substantial gains were shown in the production of both durable and non-durable goods. The index of employment in the former increased by 34 per cent., and that in the non-durable class by 15 per cent. The year 1940 saw the establishment of all-time highs in many industries, notably the textile, chemical, iron and steel and non-ferrous metal product divisions.

Canada's rich endowment in water power resources is the outflow of a fresh water area more than two and a half times the combined water and land area of Great Britain. The abundance and wide distribution of these resources and of their development is shown in Table 1. (above). The water power resources included in this tabulation provide for a total commercial installation of about 43,700,000 h.p. (more than five times the installation at January 1, 1941), seasonal shortages being provided for by water storage, by interconnection with plants operating under different load and water conditions or by fuel auxiliary plants.

Canada's total hydraulic installation of 8,584,438 h.p. is divided in Table 2 below according to the purpose of the various developments. Approximately 98 per cent. of the electricity sold by central electric stations for power purposes is produced by water power and this combined with the water power installations maintained by the manufacturing industries results in more than 80 per cent. of Canada's industrial power equipment being operated hydraulically.

The figures listed in Columns 2 and 3 in the above table represent 24-hour power and are based upon rapids, falls and power sites of which the actual drop or the head possible of concentration has been measured or at least carefully estimated. Many unrecorded rapids and falls of undetermined power capacity exist on rivers and streams from coast to coast. These will only become available for tabulation as more detailed survey work is completed; this is particularly true in the less explored northern districts. Also, no consideration has been given to the power concentrations which are feasible on rivers and streams of gradual gradient, where economic heads may be created by the construction of power dams, unless definite studies have been carried out and the results made matters of record.

Column 4 gives the total capacity of the water wheels actually installed throughout the Dominion; these figures should not be placed in direct comparison with those in Column 2 and 3 to deduce the percentage of the available water power resources developed to date. The water wheel installation throughout the Dominion averages 30 per cent. greater than the corresponding maximum available power figures for developed sites calculated as in Column 3. The above figures, therefore, indicate that the at present recorded water power resources of the Dominion will permit of a turbine installation of about 43,700,000 horse power. In other words, the present turbine installation represents slightly less than $19\frac{2}{3}$ per cent. of the present recorded water power resources and the figures in Table 1 may be said to represent the minimum water power possibilities of the Dominion.

Column 2 includes only hydro-electric stations which develop power for sale.

Column 3 includes only water power ACTUALLY DEVELOPED by pulp and paper companies. In addition to this turbine installation pulp and paper companies have motor equipment for operation by hydro-electricity purchased from the central electric stations totalled in Column 2, aggregating more than 1,260,000 h.p., making a total of more than 1,900,000 h.p. actually developed for the manufacture of pulp and paper. Large amounts of electricity are also purchased for use in electric boilers rated at more than one and three-quarters million horse-power.

Column 4 includes only water power actually developed in connection with industries other than the central electric station and pulp and paper industries. These industries also purchase power from the central electric stations totalled in Column 2.

Column 5 totals all water wheels and hydraulic turbines installed in Canada.

NOTE:—The column entitled "Total Installation per 1,000 population—H.P." shown in previous years has been discontinued temporarily.

Financing Export Trade

To any manufacturer who realizes the difficulties of producing an article which fills the requirements of foreign markets, and of securing satisfactory customers for that article against the competition of the other manufacturing countries of the world, the importance given to the subsequent details of the business may seem, at times, a little exaggerated. It is undoubtedly true, however, that close attention to those details of export business which follow the consummation of a sale, are of the greatest importance. The foreign customer not only wants standard quality goods at a competitive price, but also wants those goods delivered to him within contract time, packed in a proper way and accompanied by all the necessary documents properly made out to the last detail; and if the customer does not get what he wants along these lines, he will take his business elsewhere. Documents which do not arrive as soon as the goods, or a missing consular vise or consular invoice, will cause delays and perhaps fines. A description of the goods which may appear entirely reasonable at this end, may not be at all what is required to secure the proper tariff interpretation in the consignee's country. Such incidents are so vexatious to importers that no firm can expect to secure or retain customers unless close attention is paid to the requirements of their market along these lines. For a firm whose personnel does not know these requirements by experience, it is not always a simple matter to obtain the necessary information. The admission of imports is subject to regulation and restriction in many countries at the present time and the release of exchange in payment thereof strictly controlled by local authorities. Exporters entering any new field should familiarize themselves with such regulations before making definite commitments. In the present article, an endeavor is made to indicate the assistance which banks can render in this connection, as well as banking requirements in relation to the handling and financing of foreign shipments.

Extension of Credit by Exporters

Credit is an element in most business transactions. It can be understood that it is even more necessary in foreign than in domestic trade, since more time is usually taken up by the movement of goods between seller and buyer when these two are located in different countries, and Custom House delays are often a factor. The seller who receives a request for the extension of credit in connection with a sale has three things to consider:—(1) The financial standing of his customer; (2) the custom of the foreign market in regard to credit terms on the particular commodity being dealt in and (3) his own ability to finance the business.

The seller's bank can obtain for him a report on the prospective customer's resources and the custom of the market in regard to extension of credit. It should be pointed out here, however, that to obtain complete information by cable is usually a very expensive process, so that every effort should be made to anticipate the need for it before the matter becomes urgent. Again, the quality of the information varies. In countries where Canadian bank branches are located, it is often more complete than when received from correspondents. Sometimes, however, accurate detailed information is impossible to obtain. The banker will always do his best to advise the customer whether, in his opinion, the credit risk is reasonable, but obviously there are cases hard to decide, where the seller's judgment must be the deciding factor. Referring now to the third point mentioned above, the ability of the seller to finance the business, it is obvious that he does not want to tie up his capital in goods in transit, or in 90 days' paper awaiting payment, if he can avoid doing so. He may not be able to avoid doing it in all cases, and a certain proportion of exporters' drafts, therefore, go forward on a collection basis. For the rest, all good exporting houses have arrangements with their banks, whereby they can discount sight or time drafts on good names abroad. The willingness of the bank to enter into such an arrangement naturally depends on the financial standing of their customer, and the amount of credit involved.

Bank Discounts

The negotiation of clean bills is tantamount to making an unsecured loan to the drawers, with the added security of the drawee's name after acceptance.

In discounting both documentary and clean bills, the bank's main security, in the first instance, lies in the responsibility of the drawer. In the case of any trouble with the drawee, the bank is in a weak position unless its power of recourse to the maker is reasonably certain to be productive of satisfactory results. Drawers, therefore, must have a capital adequate to bear the loss which may easily arise from an unfortunate export transaction. The extra risk contained in export business does not lie in the greater lack of probity of foreign houses, but in the room which exists for errors and misunderstandings on account of the distances separating buyer and seller, and the difficulty and expense of conducting a long distance legal action. Misunderstandings are specially liable to arise in the case of transactions effected by correspondence. Litigation is often a lengthy and expensive process; in many cases the results are not worth the outlay.

The risk which underlies the discounting of documentary foreign drafts is not always clearly understood and it is not an uncommon thing for a firm which has been unable to finance an export shipment to criticize its bankers for their refusal to discount drafts covering the merchandise. This firm has probably been told, quite truly, that exporting involves the granting of credit. It now gets a profitable and relatively large order from a foreign house on whom good reports have been received. The terms may be sight, thirty or sixty days—quite moderate credit—yet the bank may be unwilling to discount the seller's documentary drafts. The Canadian firm cannot understand the refusal since, in its opinion, the bank is fully covered by the merchandise until acceptance, and, in the case of sight drafts, until payment. The answer is this: that this security of merchandise is often more apparent than real: that many causes for refusal of delivery may crop up, and the goods may then be a thousand miles from a good market, and unsaleable except at a sacrifice. The principal backing is then the capital of the drawer. Where this warrants the extension of the credit involved, the draft will be discounted. Firms of the class that we have referred to were probably of moderate capital, though of good standing. Their domestic business used up their resources to the hilt; and an unsuccessful excursion into the export field for other than a moderate amount might have brought them into a bad position and left a slow loan on the hands of the bank which thought it was discounting a self-liquidating bill.

Exchange Clauses

The fact that a bill is not payable in the currency of the drawee's country at once gives rise to the question of how the conversion rate between the two currencies shall be established. If this were considered a matter for arrangement between the collecting bank and the drawee, it is not difficult to imagine the complications which might arise. Would a bill for $1,000 United States currency drawn on a firm in Buenos Aires, Argentina, be settled for by the drawee paying to the bank an amount of local paper currency which, at par, would equal $1,000 U.S. or would the drawee perhaps consider settlement made by the tender of a sight draft on New York for the face amount of the bill—a settlement which would involve a loss to the drawer, if he had expected to be paid by cable? All these and other possible points of issue, are settled by the addition of a clause to the draft indicating the basis on which settlement shall be effected. The usual clauses for dollar and sterling drafts on foreign countries read respectively as follows:—

Dollar Drafts on Foreign Countries

Payable at the bank's selling rate on day of payment for sight drafts on (Canadian dollars—Montreal, U.S. dollars—New York).

Sterling Drafts on Foreign Countries

Payable at the bank's selling rate on day of payment for sight drafts on London.

Drafts drawn at ninety days' sight on South American points are not uncommon. In the case of such drafts, the drawer will have to realize that he is to lose interest, not only during the transit period of the draft and return remittance, but also during the time occupied by the draft in arriving at maturity. Thus he will have to include in his quotation interest at the prevailing rate made up as follows:—

Transit to and from Argentina and delays.....	45 days
Elapsed time to maturity date of draft.....	90 days
	<hr/> 135 days

Some drawees are slow about accepting drafts. Therefore, only experience can show exactly what loss of time should be allowed for in such transactions.

It is advisable to include bank commission and other charges in the face amount, if the drawer expects to recover the amount of his invoice in full without deduction.

There are special customs in connection with the collection or negotiation through London of bills drawn on Australia, New Zealand, Africa and the Orient; the details are somewhat too long to be included in an article of this nature, but they may be found in the booklet "Financing Foreign Trade", published by the Royal Bank of Canada.

Instructions to Banks

Exporters, when placing bills with a bank, either for discount or for collection, should be careful to give the bank full instructions in regard to the handling of the drafts in question. Instructions as to whether documents should be surrendered against payment or against acceptance, are so obvious that it is only by some clerical error that they are ever omitted, but there are numerous other points which are frequently not covered when bills are placed with a bank:—the omission sometimes leads to unnecessary trouble and expense. Example of what such instructions may consist of is given below:

Letters of Credit

A considerable volume of international business is financed by means of bankers' credits. When exporters can manage to have customers open such credits, this is obviously a very desirable way of doing business, because risk of loss and any trouble regarding financing are eliminated. While buyers have to pay the bank at their end a moderate commission for this facility, the extra expense is often compensated for by the more favorable quotations they can secure from sellers if payment is effected in this manner.

When Canadian exporting firms have credits opened in their favour, it will pay them to discuss with their bankers the sense and terms of these documents, if they are in any doubt regarding the provisions embodied therein, or the protection afforded. For example, the credit may be issued by a foreign bank, with whose standing they are not familiar. The Canadian bank can advise them whether the foreign bank in question is entirely responsible. Again, the credit may have a revocable provision which needs to be carefully considered. It is not possible to discuss here the varied aspects of this class of banking document, but it may be said that great care has to be exercised by an exporter to live up meticulously to all the requirements of a credit. Some of these may seem to him absurd and unnecessary, but he must remember that the bank at this end has no authority to vary the instructions in any way, shape or form. If they require alteration, the matter should be taken up as soon as advice of the credit is received, instead of waiting until the shipment has been loaded on board steamer and the documents brought to the bank.

No reference has been made in this article to shipping documents, although these are important from a banking point of view when drafts are received from clients, either for collection, or for discount or under terms of Letters of Credit. In the first case, the bank needs proper documents in order to render the client good service; in the second and third cases, it needs them for its own protection. This section of the subject is dealt with in the Royal Bank of Canada booklet which has previously been referred to, viz., "Financing Foreign Trade."

Foreign Exchange Control Board

The above section on "Financing Export Trade" covers the situation as it existed prior to September, 1939. Since the outbreak of hostilities, various forms of exchange control have been put into effect by Canada, the United Kingdom and most other parts of the British Empire. The following is a summary of the regulations of the Canadian Exchange Control Board affecting the exportation of Canadian merchandise:

(1) The most important feature is the Board's requirements respecting payment for such exports. Briefly, these requirements are that exports of Canadian products to British Empire countries may be paid for either in Canadian dollars, sterling, or the currency of the importing country, while shipments of Canadian merchandise to non-Empire countries are desired to be paid for in foreign exchange (preferably United States dollars), unless the Board specifically rules otherwise after considering the case of each individual exporter.

(2) As stated above, exports to all countries in the British Empire (except Hong Kong), and to Egypt, Anglo-Egyptian Sudan and Iraq, may be shipped for payment in Canadian dollars, pounds sterling, or the currency of the importing country. If the Canadian exporter wishes to receive payment in Canadian dollars, it is necessary for him (except in the case of shipments to Newfoundland) to secure from the Foreign Exchange Control Board a "Control Permit—Canadian Payment". This permit is issued in the following form:—

"This Permit is granted on the distinct understanding that the Canadian exporter is shipping in Canadian dollars for his own account, or for that of a Canadian resident. It is a further condition that the Canadian exporter shall draw his Bills in Canadian dollars on the importer in the British Empire country concerned, or his bank, and will place such Bills with an Authorized Dealer, i.e., a Canadian branch bank, for discount or collection. Such Bills must bear the clause 'Payable in Canadian dollars in the form of a cable transfer or draft issued by a bank in the country of import'.

"No other method of settlement is permissible under this permit unless special arrangements are made with the Board."

(Note: The Exchange Control Board has requested that the attention of exporters be particularly directed to the Board's requirement in the above permit form that the permit is granted on the understanding that the Canadian exporters are shipping in Canadian dollars for their own account or for that of a Canadian resident. If exporters meet with difficulty in complying with the condition set out above [for example, if they are shipping goods to an importer in another British country for the account of a New York indent house] they are asked to take the matter up with the Board.)

(3) In connection with exports to countries outside the British Empire, the Board has issued the following Memorandum:—

"(a) In the case of exports to countries elsewhere than the British Empire the payment may be either in U.S. dollars or in the currency of the country of import, provided that such currency is freely convertible. It should be noted that the currency of the country of import need only be obtained when the exporter finds that more convenient, as the payment of U.S. dollars for such exports is quite satisfactory for the purposes of the Board. (It should be remembered that if price lists are issued in terms of Canadian dollars subject to eventual payment in U.S. dollars, the conversion rate which should be applied is the official buying rate for U.S. dollars quoted by the Board.)"

With respect to the Board's observation that if price lists are issued in terms of Canadian dollars subject to eventual payment in United States dollars, the conversion rate which should be applied is the official buying rate for United States dollars quoted by the Board, it will be recalled that for the present the official bank buying rate has been fixed by the Foreign Exchange Control Board at 10%. Therefore, if an exporter has an invoice for $100 Canadian currency, he must secure at least $90.90 United States currency in order that he may ultimately be credited with the face value of $100 Canadian currency when he sells his foreign exchange to the bank. Therefore, to arrive at the amount of United States dollars payable, the face value of the invoice in Canadian dollars should be discounted by 9.09%.

In connection with the requirement that exports to non-Empire countries be paid for in foreign exchange, the Board states that Authorized Dealers (the chartered banks) will pay spot rates for forward sales of United States dollars. In this connection, the banks advise that a Canadian exporter can now cover himself for forward exchange in United States dollars without any additional cost. Suppose a Canadian exporter has an export shipment amounting to $1,100 in Canadian funds, but converts this to $1,000 United States funds and draws a draft on his customer abroad for 90 days, and presents this draft to his bank in Canada for collection. At the same time that he presents this draft for collection, he can sell forward his $1,000 United States currency, which he will not receive for 90 days, for $1,100 Canadian currency. The Foreign Exchange Control Board has instructed the banks that they are to make no charge to the exporter for this service.

(4) It is important to remember that the Ottawa authorities consider it of great importance to Canada that exports should be maintained and expanded wherever possible. The greater the expansion, the greater the advantage accruing to Canada. Therefore, the Exchange Control Board, Ottawa, is most anxious that none of its regulations shall interfere to restrict Canadians from exporting Canadian goods. If any exporter can make out a case which will convince the Board that exports to foreign countries would be impossible if paid for in United States dollars instead of in Canadian dollars, the exporter should explain his difficulties to the Board and the Board will give the most careful consideration to such exporter's request that he be permitted to receive payment in Canadian dollars.

(5) In a memorandum of policy, published in the December 23rd, 1939, issue of the Commercial Intelligence Journal, the weekly publication of the Department of Trade and Commerce, Ottawa, the Exchange Control Board states that its two main objectives in issuing the general regulation that Canadian exports to non-Empire countries should be paid for in foreign exchange are—

(a) When Canadian exporters ship for payment in Canadian dollars, the foreign importer, or his bank, naturally obtains the Canadian dollars which they require in the "unofficial" market, because the discount on Canadian exchange in that market is often greater than that quoted by the Board. This situation is brought about by a desire on the part of the non-residents, owning Canadian dollar balances, to secure foreign exchange—or, in other words, to export their money from Canada. The Foreign Exchange Control Board will not provide foreign exchange to those who desire to export their capital from this country, so that the non-resident who wishes to do so must resort to the unofficial market. It follows that if foreign exchange control is to be effective the utmost effort must be made to prevent Canadian exports being paid for by funds acquired through this unofficial market. Every export which is paid for by a transaction in this unofficial market means that Canada fails to acquire from exports the foreign exchange which should be forthcoming.

(b) Canada can only purchase from foreign countries goods, commodities, war materials, etc., by supplying cash in various foreign markets. Obviously, the main source from which Canada can obtain necessary foreign cash is out of exports to foreign markets, or by liquidating in foreign markets the foreign assets owned by Canadian residents. Having in mind, therefore, that the Foreign Exchange Control Order is a war measure considered necessary by reason of the war effort confronting this country, it is of prime importance that everything be done to ensure that the Board actually obtains the foreign exchange which ought to be produced by this country's exports.

Full information respecting the various Foreign Exchange Control Board forms required to be filled out by Canadian exporters is contained in circulars which have been issued by the Canadian Manufacturers' Association from time to time.

Five Methods of Doing Export Business

On the following pages will be found articles by experienced Canadian exporters who have proved by results obtained that their methods are correct.

These articles do not include all known methods, but they do cover the majority of recognized methods that so far have proved successful in Canada. Many firms operate combinations of these methods, depending on the types of markets to which they are selling. Each method should be considered in the light of the characteristics of one's own business and of the possible proportions to which the export side of it may grow.

The five methods range from the comparatively simple task of handling a highly specialized line by mail and the co-operation of Trade Commissioners to the handling of a very wide range of articles all used in the same trade by means of the establishment of wholesale branches of the Canadian house abroad.

Each method has its dangers and difficulties as well as advantages, and each is specially suited to certain general classes of business or types of distribution in export markets. No matter what method is adopted there is little doubt that a personal investigation of overseas markets by a principal or chief executive of the Canadian firm is the best preliminary in the development of successful export business. The initial costs of an investigation of this type may seem high at the time, but in most cases expenditures of this kind have proved to be a successful investment.

METHOD NO. 1

Development of an Export Trade Through Branches in Other Countries, Owned by the Parent Exporting Manufacturer in Canada

(Suitable for companies with a diversified product, most or all of which can find extensive export markets subjected to world-wide competition.)

The manufacturer who is endeavouring to build up an export trade to provide an increased and permanent outlet for his products and not simply looking for a channel through which to dispose of some surplus stock provided for domestic trade or to take up some plant capacity temporarily available should consider carefully the advisability of doing so through his own branches abroad, provided, of course, that his line is of a nature to warrant this consideration.

In contemplating the organization of a branch in a foreign country a great many conditions require to be taken into consideration. The territory should therefore be carefully surveyed to ascertain not only the present demand for his product but the possibility of increase in this demand for the future and how this increase is to come about. The state of the local industry and the competition therefrom, as well as competition from other sources requires to be looked into; also the possibility of securing a sufficient number of dealers of a satisfactory type to handle the lines; the general financial standing of these dealers and their attitude toward meeting obligations when due. Study should also be made of local preferences and prejudices, as it is surprising the influence these have in some parts of the world. Customs Tariffs and the possibility of revisions thereto; location for branch headquarters at a point where there are ample facilities at reasonable cost for the reception and storage of bulk stocks, as well as convenient and adequate transportation service for distribution, also require to be looked into. These, and a number of other matters which will suggest themselves, should be carefully investigated in order to give the question intelligent consideration and arrive at a decision.

If, after investigation, the manufacturer is satisfied that a sufficient demand for his product exists in a certain country and is also satisfied that conditions generally would warrant consideration being given to the establishing of a branch selling organization there, then the advantages and disadvantages of the branch system will require to be carefully weighed.

Marketing through a branch selling organization presents several advantages:

1.—The entire effort of the selling organization is concentrated on the one line and there are therefore no diverting interests as is frequently the case where a jobbing house handles a large range of goods. The manufacturer's products under the branch system cannot at any time be treated as a side line to be ignored when goods returning a greater margin of profit can be sold. Travellers and salesmen are not tempted to follow the line of least resistance as is possible where they have optional lines to offer to a dealer.

2.—If a line is one requiring service of any kind, the manufacturer can ensure his own and his customers' interests being properly cared for by providing a service staff having a thorough and expert knowledge of his goods, and it is recognized that an efficient service, where required, brings increased trade.

3.—A branch selling organization enables a manufacturer to keep more closely in touch with the requirements of the market and therefore be in a position to meet, or even anticipate, changing demands on the part of the purchasing public.

4.—In operating through a branch selling organization, the manufacturer can plan and carry on an advertising and selling campaign best suited to the sale of his lines and is free to take such action as he may consider necessary to meet any unusual conditions which may arise from time to time without having to depend upon or to consider first the interests of the importing jobber.

5.—From the standpoint of financial risk, instead of having one or two large accounts, the manufacturer will have a number of smaller accounts scattered throughout the country. In the opinion of many, a number of smaller accounts is an advantage as, after all, there is something to be said in favour of not putting the eggs all in one basket.

6.—It is reasonable to expect that the expense involved in the operating of a branch selling organization could be met by the additional margin obtained through selling direct to the dealers instead of to a large importing jobber. Even if the Branch could not do better than break even on its operations, the manufacturer would still have the advantage of his manufacturing profit on a larger volume.

7.—An esprit de corps can be developed which is a valuable asset in any selling organization.

There are, of course, some disadvantages, for instance:

1.—During a seasonal slackness or a period of temporary depression, when the demand for the manufacturer's particular product may drop off, the selling organization is handicapped through not having other lines with which to fill in.

2.—The necessity of carrying stocks which, in dealing with a large importing jobber, would very likely have been sold outright. This carrying of stocks also involves the making of provision against obsolescence.

3.—The handling and following up of numerous smaller accounts.

4.—A somewhat increased overhead at headquarters because of the necessity for executive supervision.

There are no doubt other disadvantages, some more applicable to one line than to another; however, the advantages of operating through a branch selling organization would appear to much more than offset the disadvantages, assuming, of course, that the manufacturer's line is sufficiently large and varied, the demand sufficient, and conditions generally favourable to operating in this way.

Except for the Chief Executive and perhaps one or two key men, an overseas branch should be staffed by men who speak the language of the country and who have an intimate knowledge of the country, its requirements, the people and their customs. The Branch Manager, or Chief Executive, should be one who is thoroughly familiar with the Company's products and policies and one who possesses good sound judgment. Located as he usually is, thousands of miles away from headquarters, he is frequently called upon to deal with important problems requiring prompt attention which cannot be conveniently or adequately discussed with his Head Office by telegraph or even by telephone, which is now available.

Several Canadian companies are already operating through branch houses abroad. No doubt any of them would be willing to assist other manufacturers contemplating operating in the same way by supplying whatever information they may have available.

METHOD NO. 2

Development of Export Trade Through Resident Agents or Representatives Visited at Intervals by Executive of Canadian Exporting Manufacturer.

(An excellent method that has worked out successfully in many lines as it provides for gradual growth and expansion, coupled with establishment of close personal relations with representatives and informing travel by export executive and an interchange of visits to the plant by representatives. This should be read in close conjunction with Method No. 3, with which it is closely allied.)

From a sales standpoint there are many advantages in having a resident agent, particularly if it is possible to have him visit the plant, get thoroughly acquainted with the product by closely following up through all stages of manufacture, meet the personnel of the Company, familiarize himself with the method of packing and general handling of export shipments.

A few of these advantages are as follows:

(1) A resident agent can approach customers with more confidence in the product as he is able to converse freely in the language of the country. From personal experience in the Far East and Continent of Europe, have found in many cases difficulty in getting anywhere on account of not being able to speak the language.

(2) A resident agent can keep principals posted on competitive lines and demands for necessary improvements to meet market conditions.

(3) Is in the position to revise and add to mailing lists of already established and prospective customers.

(4) Being in close touch with the financial standing of customers is able to take action on principal's behalf in the event of collection difficulties. In this connection might mention we give our resident agents authority to act on our behalf. If draft is refused, instead of costly cables and delays, it is immediately referred to the resident agent for further instructions.

(5) Is able to transfer shipments in event of disputes. In one or two cases, after shipment had left Canada, it was necessary to hold up on account of credit, which was taken care of by cable and turned over to resident agent for disposal elsewhere.

(6) Is in the position to investigate orders or enquiries which may be received by principals direct.

The advantages of visiting resident agents, as the writer sees them, are many; preferably the President, Vice-President, General Manager, or Sales Manager, as in most cases it is best to make a decision on the spot so to speak. Naturally it is better that this executive should be in close touch with the Export Department.

Visits of this kind bring the line up to date, establish confidence between agents and principals, in addition to getting first hand information as to the class of house from which orders are being received.

Might I repeat again it is very desirable if possible, to have the agent visit the factory. The executive can very often obtain information regarding the sale of competitive lines which the agent does not always seem able to obtain. Manufacturing information can very often be picked up. A general size-up of the agent's ability and his connections can be intelligently made. How often have we sized up a man by correspondence and on making his acquaintance found a totally different person than we had pictured.

In some cases the resident agent is the most economical way of conducting export business, providing, of course, you have a real live agent. There is not any definite rule that I know of to select agents or representatives. I recall one time in Australia, of interviewing a resident agent who was not interested, but later on was approached by the same firm's branch in another city, by one of their Directors who saw possibilities in our line. The firm in question turned out to be live representatives.

There seems to be some element of luck in selecting agents or representatives. In order to avoid liability it might be better to classify as resident representatives not resident agents.

METHOD NO. 3

Development of Export Trade Through Resident Agents Abroad With No Personal Visits by a Representative of the Canadian Exporting Manufacturer.

(A very large number of Canadian manufacturers use this method, gradually moving towards Method No. 2, which supplements and strengthens it.)

The policy of appointing a resident Agent abroad without any personal supervision from a representative is one which is attended with many risks and much dissatisfaction unless preceded beforehand by a very careful investigation into.

- (1) The standing of the individual or Company in the business community.
- (2) His or their financial responsibility.
- (3) Integrity.
- (4) Business capabilities.
- (5) Number and kind of other lines carried.

Too often the manufacturer looking for export business will accept the first application received for an agency arrangement, without making the ordinary investigations which would be made upon receipt of a similar application on the domestic market. Even at the present time applications are constantly being received by exporters from many bright and well-intentioned people who, after seeing or hearing of a new line, think they can sell it against old and established importing agencies who have probably controlled their market on this line for a great many years and who if approached by some obscure individual with a competitive line would give it scant consideration. It is, therefore, vitally necessary that the business standing of an individual or company should be known, in order for your product to receive fair and impartial consideration.

This will also protect the intending exporter from the unscrupulous type of individual who sends in his application under an assumed company name, on very elaborately got up business note paper, with the intention of obtaining a good set of samples for nothing.

What emphasis should be placed on financial responsibility will depend entirely on whether the agent is going to act on a purely commission basis, merely soliciting orders and passing them on to the manufacturer for shipping and financing, or to buy direct himself and in turn resell to the trade.

The integrity of an agent should be unquestionable, because any suspicion of sharp practices would immediately reflect on the company appointing the agent, and result in a definite restriction and loss of trade.

The business capability of the proposed agent should also be scrutinized; there should be a reputation for being thoroughly acquainted with all lines carried, ability to promote sales, judicious in the selection of customers and the granting of credit risks. Much profitable export business can easily be turned into serious and heavy losses unless the latter requirement is carefully followed.

Then it is very essential to know the number and kind of other lines carried, to ascertain if they are in any way complementary or competitive. It may be that the applicant is already carrying too many lines and it has been found in practice that there is a tendency to push only those lines easy to sell, or giving the greatest remuneration. Even if the agent is thoroughly reliable, it is difficult to become thoroughly acquainted with every item carried, with the result that the added new lines may suffer in comparison with the older ones. Often an agent will undertake to carry a competitive line just to prevent some other agent more favourably placed from obtaining it, sending in just sufficient orders to create the impression that an effort is being made to place the line on the market, but at the same time actually throttling its development.

There is no difficulty in obtaining resident agents overseas as an advertisement in any export Journal will bring a host of applicants, the majority of whom will guarantee to handle the line offered in the most efficient manner. The problem to solve is to be able to pick out from the replies received the one who will handle your line most successfully.

A much safer way is to entrust your agent problem to the Canadian Trade Commissioners, seeking their advice after giving them full information about your product.

It is not to be suggested that the right person or company will always be selected and in order to guard against errors of judgment and to protect them as far as possible, it would be advisable to limit the contract of any new agent appointed to one or two years, during which time you will have ample opportunity to check up and study the results obtained. If not satisfactory, the contract can then be broken off at the end of the stipulated period.

From the above it is very obvious that only the best type of individual or company should be chosen as your representative and the success or failure to open up an export market will depend very materially upon this.

The decision to appoint an individual or a company will depend to a great extent on the nature of the commodity to be exported, the distribution desired, and the extent of the market. In some countries it may be advisable to confine your agency to a large company who are in touch with all wholesale outlets, and while this may restrict the distribution, it has this compensation that credit risk is practically reduced to a minimum, and in some cases goods are paid for immediately upon receipt at the usual cash terms. Should it be the policy of the exporter to place his goods through as many outlets as possible, then the individual agent provides the best possible medium because he buys nothing for himself but simply solicits orders for the manufacturer and the greatest advantage lies in the ability of such a man to get business for his principals, from all possible buyers in his field. Another added advantage is that being constantly on the ground, he is able to take immediate advantage of every opportunity the moment it arises, and to adjust troubles and complaints that are almost certain to arise in the conduct of any business, whether it is foreign or domestic. Furthermore, there is bound to arise the question of extended and disputed drafts and he can safeguard payments and collections for his principals.

The agent's duties are not confined only to the securing of orders and some of his time will have to be spent in adjusting difficulties as they arise, also explaining away injudicious letters from the home office, for oftentimes a good connection is lost through a lack of tact and courtesy on the part of the sender.

The chief disadvantage in appointing an agent without personal supervision lies in the almost impossibility of making him or them acquainted with changes in business policy by means of a letter, no matter how well constructed it may be. It is then that close personal contact can explain away in a few minutes any misgivings held, what otherwise may take several letters spread over a considerable period. When export business is being operated at little or no profit it is difficult to explain by letter why an advertising allowance cannot be made or unreasonable claims accepted.

In summing up, it can safely be said that satisfactory business can be obtained by this method, although of course it will always lack that undefinable something which always comes with personal contact.

METHOD NO. 4

The Development of Export Trade Through Export Merchants, Export Buying Houses or Indent Houses.

(This method or really two methods in one, with many similar characteristics, offers a wide field for certain varieties of products but if used solely should be chosen with the utmost discretion. The Indent House Method can fit in by consent with Methods two and three and can be attempted simultaneously.)

Co-operation with reliable indent houses in suitable cases provides a means of training members of manufacturers' staffs in export technique and provides specialized selling and personal contacts in export markets while retaining the identity of manufacturers goods through to the customer.

In the "Export Merchants" discussion prospective exporters would do well to ponder seriously over the disadvantages mentioned.)

There are many manufacturers in Great Britain who have been able to secure a splendid volume of business overseas without ever having had even an export department of their own. They have secured this business through London houses operating as Export Merchants or through London Indent firms.

EXPORT MERCHANTS operate really as Export Wholesale Houses. They make an arrangement with a Manufacturer by which they will have the control of anything he makes that may be shipped overseas. If the Manufacturer receives an enquiry from abroad, he refers it to this Export Merchant. The Merchant buys for cash from the Manufacturer and turns around and quotes the merchandise to firms overseas at a price that will give him a profit. He takes all the credit responsibility and even arranges for proper distribution in any market where there would seem to be a demand for this particular product. He has Representatives who travel to different countries in the world and in this way keeps in touch with his connections abroad.

There are many advantages to the Manufacturer from handling his export business in this manner:

1. It costs him nothing to sell his goods. He may at times find it necessary to supply something in the way of samples but this is likely to be a small matter and if it really amounts to something, he can usually arrange to supply the samples at regular prices, less a sample discount.
2. He sells for cash and has no credit risk. Manufacturers are often concerned and rightly so, about the credit standing of firms overseas who may wish to buy their goods. Selling to the Export Merchant, he gets his money even sooner than for domestic sales.
3. He avoids the necessity of having an export department in his business. The Export Merchant looks after all details of shipping, insurance and invoicing and all the Manufacturer has to do is to ship his goods to Seaboard as directed and submit ordinary domestic invoices. The overseas correspondence is conducted by the Export Merchant, who is competent to look after this even if it be in a foreign language.

4. He increases the volume of business passing through his plant and in this way lowers his unit cost of production. This enables him to compete more successfully in his own market.

The disadvantages of this method are not great. There are one or two features that should be considered:

1. He will probably not know his customers overseas and if for any reason, the Export Merchant breaks his connection, he may lose his overseas business. However, the Export Merchant is not likely to do this so long as he gets good treatment from the Manufacturer. It costs money to develop a market and no one wishes to have to do it with a new product if he already has one established.

2. He will need to make sure that the Export Merchant has a distinct possibility to get business for it has been known to happen that representation of a line has been gotten to keep it off the market. For that reason, it should only be given for an initial period of not too long so that if business does not result, he can take other means to get it.

INDENT FIRMS are really Buying Houses or Purchasing Houses in one country for firms located in other countries overseas. Many overseas firms prefer to have all their business attended to by their own buying offices located in centres of countries where manufacturing industries are plentiful. Such firms as these are often a good means of getting manufactured goods introduced to their overseas clients.

1. They usually buy for first class firms only.
2. They pay cash for all purchases.
3. They attend to all details of shipping, insurance, invoicing and correspondence.

On the other hand:

1. They take no responsibility for sales at all but simply place orders on definite instructions received from their clients.

2. They buy only for their own clients and it may be possible there are other firms in overseas countries who might be interested in the goods. The indent houses will not offer the goods for sale to other than their own clients. Their distribution therefore is limited unless a Manufacturer is dealing with a number of Indent Houses operating in the same overseas markets.

The number of Export Merchants and Indent Firms in Canada has been limited, due probably to the fact that it is only comparatively recently that Canadian Manufactured goods have been shipped in volume and variety to overseas markets. It is only reasonable to expect that their numbers will increase and in this way, there will be offered to Canadian Manufacturers a method of securing export business that is sound, economical and safe.

METHOD NO. 5

Development of Export Trade Direct by Mail.

(This method though useful for highly specialized products marketed to well-rated and substantial customers is fraught with many dangers unless subjected to the closest analysis. It is true it grows gradually to the point of becoming exactly like Method No. 3, but the initial stages of attempting to do business direct by mail, without previous intense and discriminating selection of risks, are full of pitfalls and form a pretext for the propagation of many useless schemes.)

Many Canadian industries, organized primarily to supply their domestic market, do not have the large organization nor the facilities necessary to maintain branches or even direct agents handling only their products in foreign markets.

In these days of specialization, the products of many plants must sometimes be sold in the export markets by commission agents handling kindred lines in order to spread the selling expense over sufficient volume to make export sales profitable. In fact, modern practice has resulted in many plants making only one particular line of goods often of interest only to some one trade or profession. Often this means a field so restricted it does not pay the producer to seek export business through ordinary channels. However, such specialized lines usually have the advantage of being of special interest and usefulness to certain definitely known trades or professions. Lists of prospects for such lines can be obtained and trade solicited in foreign, almost as easily as in the domestic market. It is possible in this way to eliminate expensive selling costs and create a demand for such goods as will permit some responsible agent to stock or supply them profitably.

Of course, wherever this is practical, a selling agent right on the ground is always much better and more satisfactory. A good agent can create connections not obtainable by mail and can always learn why prospects are not interested or correct any misunderstanding which no amount of correspondence might bring out. It is no different in foreign markets than at home. Every purchaser takes the easiest way and will usually pay more to be relieved of all details of which he knows little or nothing.

The local agent has special advantages over direct-by-mail solicitation in countries using other than the English language. A good agent will speak fluently the one or more languages used and can usually translate special instructions into English for the manufacturer, thus overcoming many chances of misinterpretation.

Even if carefully written and checked over, transcriptions from English to other languages are sometimes misleading. Often the correct version does not convey the idea or thought as well as if the letter were written in the dialect peculiar to the country in which the prospect resides.

Particularly in financial matters, the agent can secure reports, approach only good accounts and help with collections when necessary.

But in spite of all these drawbacks it is possible to do a good and profitable export business direct by mail with lines which could in no other way be exported to advantage. Goods of exceptional interest and usefulness to some definitely known trade or profession—possibly not ordinarily obtainable except on special order or which must be delivered in fresh condition. Especially such goods as can be sent by Parcel Post.

The first step is to secure an agent to handle deliveries and lists of interested users. This can usually be done with the aid of the Canadian Trade Commissioner in the market to be tried.

The Commissioner should be given full particulars of the product—samples where possible—and suggestions as to the class of trade likely to be interested. He will suggest an agent and the best source for obtaining lists of prospects. Usually he can secure good lists for the exporter. As an official Canadian representative, the Trade Commissioner often has access to records and information not ordinarily obtainable. In fact, he can usually give better advice and suggestions about the market he represents than could be obtained by months of direct investigation. It is his duty to assist in the sale of any Canadian product in his market. No better corps of expert salesmen could be had at any price than is available to every Canadian exporter.

Having arranged for handling deliveries and secured a list of prospects, a carefully prepared campaign for that particular market should be worked out. Letters should always be in the language of that market. When other than English, such letters should be very carefully translated. If time permits, it is always best to submit the suggested series of letters to the Trade Commissioner for O.K. Translations are often much clearer and get better results if in the particular style or dialect in use in the prospect's country.

Full and complete description—good illustrations, showing the goods and their uses—are essential to best results. Even if it does not pay to translate catalogues or circulars, sufficient explanation should be given in the letters to make their advantages and uses clear to the prospect.

Arrangements with the agent should be made to either stock or obtain goods promptly a demand has been created so as not to lose the benefit of direct solicitation. With the help of the Trade Commissioner, a good agent should be arranged for who will supply the demand. With reasonable prospects the agent can be induced to purchase some stock or if sent on consignment to guarantee payment as the goods are sold. Once the agent is convinced there is a profitable demand he will undertake selling on his own account.

There is no doubt that many Canadian products could be exported in this way if reasonable time and care were given all the necessary details. Export markets are particularly desirable to most Canadian manufacturers to permit increased volume production—not always possible in a comparatively restricted home market. Even if such exports are sold close to actual costs, they are a great advantage in absorbing overhead costs and creating steady employment of sometimes highly trained staffs.

One thing should be kept in mind always—for the good of all Canadian exporters. Once foreign trade has been solicited, be prepared to make prompt deliveries of thoroughly dependable goods offering good value. A manufacturer who solicits foreign business only while his trade is slack in Canada and fails to give good service on foreign business during rush times in domestic trade is creating a very bad opinion in foreign markets, not only of his own concern but on all his fellow exporters as well.

Let every Canadian exporter maintain the good reputation created by our Trade Commissioners and by our most successful exporters by good service, reliable goods and fair dealing.

The following list includes some of the principal abbreviations used in ocean shipping, transportation, marine insurance, and foreign exchange, as well as a number referring to standards, gauges, threads, dimensions, electrical and engineering terms. It was compiled with the assistance of our members, marine insurance companies, banks and departments of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association. It is hoped it will be useful both to Canadian exporters and importers of Canadian products abroad.

Explanation of List

THE list beginning on the opposite page comprises the names and addresses, alphabetically arranged, of all firms appearing in the classified section of the Canadian Trade Index. In this list we have tried to give the users of the book some information that will be useful in getting into quick touch with the makers of any desired article.

No street addresses are given in Part III (the classified article section). These are recorded where necessary to complete the address in Part II (the alphabetical list).

We have not attempted to give, in this list, any full account of the products. These will all be found under separate headings in the classified section on pages 323 and following. Only where the firm or company name does not indicate the line of goods manufactured have we mentioned some of the articles produced.

The address given is that of the main place of business in Canada, usually the head office, although it may be both factory and office address. The addresses given later, under "Factories," are those of branch factories. Where branch offices in Canada are mentioned stock is generally carried at these points.

For. Rep. or simply Rep. means foreign or other representative for export sales purposes.

The Cable addresses and codes will be found useful in initiating and transacting export business.

Guide to Classified Index

THE method of indexing the material on the succeeding pages is that by which the most important word in headings is generally placed first. The arrangement then proceeds in the proper alphabetical order. In the majority of cases it will be found that the noun or main name comes first, i.e.—Furniture, bedroom; Hardware, builders; Leather, boot and shoe upper, etc. This allows the grouping of all similar articles close together. In other cases, where the inversion seems unnatural, the headings have been listed as they run—air appliances; fire escapes, etc. If any difficulty is experienced in locating desired headings or articles, users of the book should try both forms of listing. This will enable the heading to be found if it appears in the book at all.

In all cases we have endeavored to use the names most commonly known. It is possible that we have listed some products and materials under names that differ from those that our subscribers use. Synonyms will therefore be useful to bear in mind.

Cross references have been supplied where two or more names are commonly used to describe the same article.

Street addresses of the firms listed in the classified section are provided where necessary in the alphabetical list of names (on blue sheets) immediately preceding the Classified Section (Part III, pages 321 to 716).

Attention is also called to the French Index of articles, which is placed immediately after the Produce Section (Part IV, pages 717 to 724). In a limited edition a Spanish Index also appears following the French Index.

Firms before whose name an asterisk appears are engaged or seriously interested in Export Trade.

We shall be glad to have the opportunity of giving additional information to any manufacturer or user of the Canadian Trade Index. No charge is made for this service.
